FLOOD-SWEPT CITY SAVED: MILLIONS LOSS

Correspondent at Augusta, Ga., From Top of Telegraph Pole Sends Word Water Is Receding, but Tremendous Damage Has Been Done.

By Dudley Glass.

AT WATER'S EDGE ON A POSTAL TELEGRAPH POLE NEAR AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 27.—A sea of muddy water reaching the second floor of the business houses and driving residents into the attics and in some cases into trees, is Augusta in its flood to-day.

The highest stage is passed, and the water is receding. More than two-thirds of the city is covered, and the submerged portion includes all the principal business and residence districts.

Only that part of the city south and east of the first level of the canal is above water. This canal, which is higher than the streets, saved it.

The property losses reach into the millions.

All the factories along the canal have been swept by the flood and the machinery damaged, much of it beyond repair.

Fire last night broke out in two warehouses of the Nixon Grocery Co. Several lime warehouses burned, the fire starting from spontaneous combustion.

Loss of Life Reported Heavy.

The loss of life is reported to be heavy, but no verification can yet be obtained. There is a well-defined story that two women in a buggy were drowned in a street when the vehicle turned over.

It is also reported that a woman and two children and a negro cabman were drowned near the Union depot.

No bodies have yet been recovered, and will not be until the flood subsides. All of the mines have been put out of business and their employes out of work.

The cotton mills district, where there are rows of tenements occupied by the employes, were not flooded.

Thousands are temporarily homeless. Most of them got refuge in churches which were thrown open to them. Many of them fled to the heights. Green street, the fashionable residence thoroughfare of the city, is under water. Neither of the local newspapers printed yesterday or this morning.

There have been no street car or telephone service, electric or gas lights, or water from the system since noon yesterday. Many men were left all night in business houses without food.

Train Service Cut Off.

Only on those buildings which were burned can insurance be recovered, as policies do not cover floods.

No trains are running except those of the Georgia railroad to Atlanta, which get within five miles of the city. All other roads have been cut off.

A food shortage is threatened, owing to damage to the grocery stocks. Many people were caught in their homes by the sudden flood, which rose ten feet in an hour. Some took to trees and were rescued by boats.

The dry portion of the city is deserted except for negroes and a few whites at the water's edge. It is evident that most of the residents of the better class are in their homes surrounded by water.

Bodies have been seen floating in the flood. Not until the river recedes, and it is possible to reach the centre of the city, can any accurate estimate of the loss of life or property be made. It is probable that many bodies will be found. Hundreds of persons are missing, but they may be accounted for when conditions improve.

LOSS OF MILLIONS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

By Boston American Leased Wire.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 27.—With the heaviest rainfall in the history of South Carolina, the State suffered the loss of millions of dollars' worth of property by the present unprecedented floods, the burden of the loss falling upon farmers.

The cotton crops are damaged at least fifty per cent., and the corn crop even more. Some of the cities and towns where the flood is most serious are cut off entirely from the outside world.

The Congaree River, at Columbia, has reached the highest stage since 1894. The great cotton plantations along the river for fifty miles south of Columbia have been destroyed, the surface soil being washed away, leaving the lands almost worthless.

The Columbia power canal, which cost a million dollars, is giving away, though hundreds of convicts and laborers are working hard to save it.

The Southern Railway reports tracks washed away between Columbia and Spartanburg and Columbia and Greenville, including the disarrangement of the two big steel bridges crossing Broad River at Shelter and Alston.

The bridges of the Southern and Seaboard Air Line which cross the river at Columbia have been abandoned. Officials state it will be several days before traffic can be resumed on any of these lines. There will probably be some loss of life, as a number of people are missing.

UNCLE SAM HAS 755,000,000 ACRES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—From reports recently received from the various local land offices, including those in Alasak, the general land office reports an area of the public domain remaining undisposed of on July 1, 1908, as 754,895,296 acres of surveyed andu nsurveyed public lands. Alaska has the largest total, 368,021,509 acres, Nevada being next with 61,177,450, and New Mexico third with 41,777,905.

FEAR FATE OF FARMER WITH JAILBREAKER

Believe Missing Man Lured Away by Whitney Disguised as Pedler.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 27.—Believing that murder has been committed, scores of farmers living around Sebago Lake are to-day beating the woods for some trace of George Libbey, a resident and well-known farmer, who disappeared a week ago in company with a man believed to be Ben Whitney, the famous outlaw and horse thief.

Whitney, who has a long string of crimes to his account, escaped from Portsmouth jail one week ago last Saturday night. A man answering his description came here a week ago in the guise of a pedler. This was one of the tricks of Whitney, it is remembered.

The pedler had in his pack several razors, and Libbey bought one, displaying a big roll of bills when paying the man for it. Then a low-toned conversation between the men followed, and Libbey went away with the stranger. This is the last that has been seen of either.

The authorities here believe that the pedler was Whitney, and now Libbey's fate is a mystery, and the whole countryside has joined in the search.

MAYOR SELLS TRADE PAPER

Mayor George A. Hibbard has retired from the publishing business, and his paper, the monthly trade journal known as the Apparel Retailer, has been sold.

The paper has been conducted by the Mayor and W. L. Terhune for five years, and its mission was to make Boston better known as a market for various kinds and forms of apparel.

The new owners are De Sales Doonan, formerly managing editor, and Joseph M. Lennon, the advertising manager of the paper.

VETS WARN MERCHANTS

Department Commander Edward J. Gihon of the United Spanish War Veterans is very much annoyed over reports that are reaching department headquarters regarding advertising solicitors who are using the name of the organization among the business men of Boston.

Colonel Gihon issued the following statement to-day:

"No person has been authorized to solicit advertising, in the name of the United Spanish War Veterans in Boston and no person will be given this authority, as the organization decided several weeks ago that it would not ask the business men of Boston for advertisements."

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Aug. 27.—There were many anxious glances skyward this morning when Old Sol failed to make his usual appearance to dry up the heavy grounds for the Browns and Red Sox to gambol on in their eighteen-inning scratch race on the diamond circuit.

The fans kept the bureaus of information busy wanting to know the possibility of the double-header being played, and word was sent out from headquarters that the program would get underway unless a deluge got loose and tied things up.

It was rather a chilly afternoon to watch the diamond sport, but the expectation of seeing the Red Sox take both games from the Browns caused the weather conditions to be overlooked in the ecstasy of celebrating such a great event.

Chief Engineer McGuire caused bulletins to be posted around quarters that the enemy was about to approach and he wanted every player to be in battle trim for the big exercise which was on tap, as the Browns were the accepted victims of the Red Sox and had circulated rumors to the effect that they were about to break up the hoodoo which the Red Sox had held over them so long and were ready to get off the mark at a fast pace with the intention of maintaining it to the end.

But the visitors were a more subdued looking lot than when they last appeared on the surface, the other Eastern teams having riddled them with defeats and there was considerable doubt that they could get together to meet the furious attack the Reds had prepared for them.

From the pitching standpoint McGuire had all the best of it over his rival, McAleer, whose flingers had received harsh treatment on their Eastern cruise, and with Big Cy Young to hew a way to victory at the start-off it seemed like clear sailing to the final goal.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Stone drove a liner to left centre which sounded good, but Sullivan was playing just right to grab it. Wagner played fast on Hartzell's bounder and shot it to Stahl. Heldrick, the old-timer, got a hand when he came up and after bumping off several fouls went out by the fan route. NO RUNS.

McConnell hit to the clouds, the ball falling in Stone's hands. Lord also hit in the air to right, and Hartzell took care of it. Thoney worried Bailey and succeeded in working him for a pass. Thoney didn't wait long at first, but dashed for second, Smith's low throw hitting him in the topknot. He started to steal third and would have had it, but Cravath fouled. Cravath raised a high fly for Jones. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Young got a funny assist when Ferris's stinging liner struck him in the backbone and bounded over to Stahl, and the touched the runner out. Wallace got the first hit, dropping a single to short right. Williams hit a hot one that went by Lord like a shot to left, putting Wallace on third, and Wallace took second on the throw to get Wallace. Smith hit to Lord, Harry making a peach pickly, and Wallace was caught going to the plate and finally run down by Young. Jones hit a warm one to Wagner and he fumbled, as Smith was running in front of him, but he recovered quick as a flash and got the ball to Stahl in time. NO RUNS.

Stahl opened up with a triple to the right fence. Ferris got Wagner's twisting high fly. Sullivan got a lucky hit, Bailey deflecting the ball so that it rolled to left field, and Stahl scored. Jones picked off Criger's foul close to the first base bleachers. Young shocked the fans by driving the ball to centre on a line for a single. Heldrick took McConnell's low fly. ONE RUN.

THIRD INNING.

Bailey grounded to Wagner and died at first. Stone went out by the same route. Young fumbled Hartzell's little grounder and then threw wild to Stahl, Hartzell taking second. Cy made sure on Heldrick's high bounder and got the ball to Stahl. NO RUNS.

The wind held up Lord's fly so that Hartzell easily got under it. Thoney couldn't solve Bailey's curves and swung vainly. Bailey wasn't anxious to let Cravath hit the ball and walked him. He thought pretty well of Stahl, and let him trot to first. Hartzell didn't have to move to get Wagner's fly. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Wagner fastened on to Ferris's gingery grounder and got Hobe at first. Wallace flied out to Sullivan. Cravath got Williams's fly toward the flag pole. NO RUNS.

Bailey got in the way of Sullivan's rap and tossed him out. Wallace had an easy assist off Criger. Williams took Young's pop. NO RUNS.

CASTRO FINES FRENCH CABLE FIVE MILLIONS

CARACAS, Venezuela, Monday, Aug. 24, via Port of Spain, Trinidad, Aug. 27.—The civil court of first instance handed down to-day a judgment declaring the French Cable Company guilty of complicity in the Matos revolution against President Castro, and condemning it to pay damages to the amount of nearly $5,000,000. In addition the company must pay a further amount, to be assessed later by experts.

The company may appeal from this decision. It is practically a duplication of the decision handed down against the New York and Bermudez Asphalt Company.

The British Minister to Venezuela has been in conference lately with President Castro, at Barquisimeto.

As the French Cable Company is heavily subsidized by France, this fine is almost equivalent to a fine upon France itself.

1 DROWNS, 1 SAVED AS DORY CAPSIZES

Lee Crocker, thirty years of age of No. 571 Shirley street, Winthrop, was drowned between Apple and State Islands to-day, while his companion, Nicholl Antoni, fifty years old, an Italian living at the same address, was rescued after a long pull in a boat by Andrew R. Hines, a ladderman of Engine 11, East Boston, and his two nephews, Thomas Hines and William Hamilton.

The wind was blowing a gale from the northeast when Crocker and Antonio left Winthrop for their lobster pots, which were moored between Apple and State Islands. The sea was running high at the time, and from time to time the little craft was lost to view by the many people watching it from shore.

Hines and his two nephews were just returning from a fishing trip when Thomas saw the boat of the two lobster men capsize.

Fireman Hines was rowing at the time. Turning his boat around, he pulled to the capsized boat. Both Crocker and Antonio could be seen clinging to the upturned dory, and with a cry to hold on Hines gradually drew near. About fifty yards from the scene of the disaster, Crocker was seen to loosen his hold from the dory and disappear from view.

When they drew alongside Antonio was fast losing his strength. He was lifted into the boat, which nearly swamped. The pull to the shore was a long one, with a head sea running.

A physician had been sent for, and when a landing was made Antonio was immediately rushed to a nearby drug store, where he soon revived.

Crocker has a brother living in Hanover, Mass., who has been notified of his brother's death.

RICH MAN IS SUED BY GIRL

LYNN, Aug. 27.—People who know the parties in the case were very much mystified by the suit for $10,000, brought by Maud McKay of this city against George Manson, a wealthy South Peabody man. Attorney A. B. Tolman of Lynn, counsel for the plaintiff, declines to discuss the case. The suit is an action in tort and was filed in the office of the registrar of probate in Salem.

Manson was formerly a pawnbroker in Lynn, but retired several years ago and is reputed to have amassed a fortune. The woman was formerly his clerk. He is said to be about sixty years old and she is much his junior. His attorney is Lawyer Hall of Salem.

ACCUSED OF BRIBERY.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 27.—Louis Drapmel was arrested to-day on the charge of attempting to bribe U. S. Commissioner Fred P. Walther, before whom were being conducted extradition proceedings against John Kerkovic, an Austrian counterfeiter.

'I'M DONE WITH EARLE,' SAYS AFFINITY WIFE

JULIA KUTTNER'S OWN STORY OF TORTURES SHE SAYS SHE ENDURED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Despite the declaration of Mrs. Julia Kuttner Earle that he treated her brutally and that she never desired to see her affinity-husband again, Frederick Pinney Earle is making every effort to-day to affect a reconciliation.

He is writing letters and using the telephone and telegraph in an effort to communicate with his wife, but she has not replied to him. Before leaving Monroe with his sister the affinity's brother declared that she should never live with the artist again. Mrs. Earle is supposed to be at the Kuttner's Summer home as Boslenig Ridge, near Montclair, N. J.

Here is one of the messages Earle sent his wife, begging her to come back to him:

"If you will only return we will go far away and begin life all over again. I was horrified when I heard all these reports which say I have ill-treated you since we were married. You know I love you. You know what I have endured for you, and you know that we both ought to come together again if only for the sake of our child.

Victor Earle, brother of the artist, was expected to reach Goshen, N. Y., where Earle is in jail, to-day, and make bond for him. He will go before Judge Boyce at Middletown and bail will be fixed at $1,000.

Julia Kuttner Earle, after her husband was taken from their home at Monroe, N. Y., by the authorities, left there with her mother and brother, Arthur Kuttner, and came with them to their home in New York city, where she is now. Before leaving Monroe, she made this statement:

"Yes, It Is All Over."

"Yes, it is all over. I am altogether disillusioned. I will never live with Ferdinand Earle again. I never want to see him again.

"I fell in love with what I thought was a man of gentle nature, artistic mind and beautiful temperament. I thought I had married a man who would be a true husband as long as I lived.

"Instead of that, I found I had married an arrogant selfish creature, whose every whim I was expected to gratify. He hardly knew what he wanted from one minute to the next.

"Things became worse after the baby came. Then he acted like a brute. He hadn't even the instincts of a gentleman.

"Finally he became exasperated when I could not obey his wishes.

"When I was so weak I should not have left my bed, he compelled me to get up. He stood me in a corner and lectured me by the hour. I don't remember what he talked about. I became actually afraid of him.

"Feared Life Was in Danger."

"At last I could stand it no longer. I managed to write a letter while he was out of the room, and the nurse sent it for me. It was to my brother, Arthur, and I told him I believed my life was in danger. I thought Earle would take my own life and that of my child. Then my brother and my mother came up to Monroe."

Earle is locked up on a charge made by Miss Inez Berry, the nurse who attended his wife. Mrs. Kuttner was afraid of Earle and did not dare take any action herself, so the nurse made the deposition on which the warrant for his arrest was issued.

The artist lost his composure in jail when it was explained to him that, as he had pleaded guilty and had been held for the Grand Jury, the matter was now out of his wife's hands. She could not stop the proceedings against him, he was told, even if she would.

He then made a statement, saying he still loved her, and declared himself anxious for a reconciliation.

"I think this whole matter can be fixed up if I see my wife," he said. "I want to be reconciled to her. I want to ask her to forgive me.

Blames Wife's Brother.

"The whole trouble was caused by Julia's brother, Arthur Kuttner," he said. "He did something I did not like a little while ago, and I slapped his face. Since then he has been angry at me.

"I love Julia as much as ever. It is false that I ever said I have found she is not my 'soul mate.' I never loved a woman with such undying affection. I love her with all my soul, and nothing can ever separate us.

"This Kuttner fellow happens to be a relative of mine by marriage and that is the cause of the trouble. I suppose I ought to have taken into consideration the fact that my wife had a family. I never had anything in common with either of the Kuttner boys.
because a woman can be very exasperating

"It is not true that I ever struck or choked my wife. I may have pushed her, at times. I got excited, but don't you believe that I ever intended to do Julia any harm.

"I love her so much that I would not harm a hair of her head. I have never had any cause to regret my marriage to the only woman I ever loved."

"Is the reporttrue that you attempted to strangle your child, Mr. Earle?" asked the reporter.

Earle's face grew livid beneath his close-cropped VaVndyke beard as he replied:

"That is a damnable lie. They say that I tried to strangle that child, the fruit of our union, do they? Does Julia say that? No! I'll swear that Julia never said anything of the kind."

Slapped and Punched Wife.

From the affidavits, filed by Miss Inez Berry, on which the warrant for his arrest was issued, it appears that slapping his wife's face and punching her with his clenched fists, was not a single occurrence, but a habit of Earle since last July.

The affidavit says:

"Ferdinand Pinney Earle has been guilty of assaulting his wife, Julia Kuttner Earle, by choking her and beating her with his fist at various times.

"On August 16 he grabbed his wife by the throat and choked her until she was almost unconscious. He then struck her in the face half a dozen times, causing bruises and abrasions which were visible for many days."

About a month ago Mrs. Earle gave birth to a boy. She is not a strong woman, though of rather stout build, and she was weak and ill for a long time after the child was born. Earle insisted that she should not nurse the child herself. He wanted it brought up on the bottle. Mrs. Earle refused. She was quite able to nurse her son, and insisted upon performing the natural duty of a mother. Earle became sulky, then angry, then infuriated.

Threats to Kill.

In the presence of an aunt of the young mother, twelve adys after the birth of their child, according to the sworn statement in the affidavit, Earle beat and choked his weak and sick wife, leaving the marks of his fingers upon her throat, and for some grievance not divulged threatened to kill her and the nfant an dtake his own life by swallowing a dose of prussic acid from a supply in his laboratory.

This, it is said, was the culmination of a number of attacks which began in July before the birth of the child.

At the request of counsel for Mrs. Earle and her family, Sheriff Decker was requested to have Earle placed under observation by Dr. Condict, the jail physician, and it is reported they will employ alienists to pass upon his sanity.

The penalty for assault in the second degree is five years' imprisonment, $1,000 fine, or both.

A.O.H. MAY HOLD NEXT SESSION IN PITTSFIELD

Boston Men Win Out in Election at Convention in Lynn.

SIGHT-SEEING TRIPS TODAY

With all the business transacted and officers for the ensuing two years elected, the biennial sessions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Ladies' Auxilliary which have been held in Lynn for the past few days ended last night, and to-day is being spent in sightseeing about the city.

State President John J. Rogers was re-elected by acclamation, while John H. Dillon of Boston won out over James A. Ryan of Lynn for vice-president by a vote of 320 to 150. For State Secretary, Jeffrey E. Sullivan was declared elected over James Corbishly, the former receiving 350 votes to 130 for the latter. Edward McCarthy was elected State Treasurer, receiving 321 votes. His opponent, James E. Cox had 161 votes.

Mrs. Catherine Burke was re-elected State president of the Ladies' Auxilliary. The other officers elected were Mrs. Julia Hayes, vice-president; Mrs. Mary A. Cavanaugh, State secretary; Mrs. Catherine Shaughnessy, State treasurer.

State Chaplain Resigns.

National President Matthew Cummings installed the officers-elect of the men's branch, and National Vice-President Mrs. Mary A. McCarthy inducted into office the new officers of the women's organization.

State Chaplain Rev. Thomas A. McLaughlin of Adams, after serving several years, surprised the delegates by tendering his resignation, declaring that he wanted to see new blood in his place.

As Archbishop O'Connell has the appointment of the chaplain to succeed Father McLaughlin, it is confidently hoped that he will endorse the selection of National President Cummings, and approved of by the State Board, of Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, pastor of St. Philip's Church, Roxbury, at present chaplain of Suffolk County.

Father O'Donnell is one of the most engaging and versatile pulpit orators in the country, and as he himself says, "a Hibernian at all times."

In an address to the delegates at the close of the convention Fr. O'Donnell graciously alluded to the fact that he deemed it a distinguished honor to be the chaplain of the greatest Catholic organization in the country.

United Fight for Home Rule.

"But," said he, "I must not consider myself as such until our beloved Archbishop O'Connell places the stamp of approval on the selection made by your officers."

The resolutions adopted by both conventions embodied the organization's stand on Irish questions and pleaded for unity among the Irish people everywhere in procuring home rule for the people of Ireland. They complimented Douglass Hyde for his loyalty to the Irish language movement in Ireland and urged each subordinate branch to affiliate with the American Federation of Catholic Societies.

It was voted to allow the State officers to decide the city in which the next biennial convention will be held. Many delegates were in favor of having it in either Boston, Springfield or Pittsfield.

It is the opinion that Pittsfield will be chosen. Whichever place gets the convention, according to the delegates, the locality will be honored by one of the biggest street parades in the history of the order.

'I'LL YET FIND MRS. GUNNESS'

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LAPORTE, Ind., Aug. 27.—Attorney Worden, who is defending Ray Lamphere, indicted for the murder of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her three children and with complicity in the murder of Andrew Hegelin, has prepared papers in application for a writ of habeas corpus.

It is alleged that the State has no evidence connecting Lamphere with setting fire to the Gunness house and none to show he had anything to do with her death or the death of her children. Mr. Worden feels sure the arch-murderess is alive. "We expect to find her one of these days," he said.

POLICE BAFFLED BY RESERVOIR MYSTERY

BODY OF BEAUTIFUL YOUNG WOMAN AT THE MORGUE STILL AWAITS IDENTIFICATION.

The body of the beautiful young woman which was found in the smaller Chestnut Hill reservoir is to-day at the City Hospital Morgue, where it awaits identification.

The police of Boston are inviting persons to view the body in the hope that some one will claim it and thus help to the solution of the mystery as to how she came to her death.

Three persons visited the morgue to-day, but none could say who the pretty young woman was.

Here is a description of the body of the pretty young woman:

About twenty-two years of age; five feet three inches in height; dark complexion; fine teeth; luxuriant dark brown hair; blue eyes; no hat; white shirt waist of fine quality; black woolen skirt; black Eton jacket with velvet collar; low tan shoes and tan stockings; silk garters.

To-day, Medical Examiner William G. McDonald made his report. He finishedd a complete autopsy of the body yesterday afternoon. He says that there are no marks of violence on the body.

The woman was in perfect normal physical condition having no cause whatever for desiring to take her own life.

Mystery as yet impenetrable surrounds the identity and the fate of the woman and the police of Boston are conducting a widespread search to discover who she was.

Everything about the case is still shrouded in the deepest mystery. The clothing worn by the woman was of fine texture, but not a laundry mark, not a single tag or tab was found on the clothing which would in anyway assist in an identification.

The police are halted at the threshold of their inquiry until identity has been established.

4 HURT AS HUGE STONE FALLS FROM BUILDING

WORKMEN CAUGHT IN CRASH AS GRANITE BLOCK TUMBLES FROM THIRD STORY.

Four stonecutters were injured, two of them seriously, to-day in the fall of a large granite block from the third story of an apartment house which is being built at Commonwealth avenue and Harvard street, Allston.

The seriously injured are:

Gaudvel, Nicholas, of No. 1 Davis street; collarbone fractured and bad bruises and cuts.

Linton, David, of No. 137 Orleans street, East Boston; multiple injuries.

The other two men were taken to their homes. They are not badly hurt and will soon be at work again.

The men were at work on a staging at the third floor of the incompleted building and had just swung the block into position on the wall when, in some unaccountable way, the huge piece of granite toppled forward right upon the workmen.

The block, the men and the staging fell with a tremendous crash to the ground. The whole neighborhood was aroused and a great crowd soon gathered at the spot.

Workmen ran from every direction. The injured men were rescued from the wreck of the scaffolding and telephone calls were sent to the City Hospital and the Brighton police station for ambulances.

Gaudvel and Linton were sent to the hospital while the two other men were taken to their homes in carriages after their slight injuries were dressed by doctors who came at once.

Barnard Wolk was the contractor constructing the building. The police of station 14, Brighton, are investigating the accident.

BURGLAR UNDER BED TRAPPED AT GUN POINT

YOUTH IS FOUND IN MEDFORD HOUSE AND TURNED OVER TO POLICE.

Covering with his revolver a man whom he found crouching under a bed in his house, Frederick E. Thompson, of No. 21 Orchard street, Medford, early to-day held the intruder at bay until his wife telephoned the police and the officers came in a hurry and arrested the man.

Joseph Silverstein, nineteen years of age, of Boston, was all that the man would say for himself at Medford police headquarters.

Mrs. Thompson heard a noise in the house about 2 this morning and roused her husband. Thompson, arming himself, explored the house.

In one of the rooms Thompson fancied he saw a man's form. The fellow disappeared under a bed to hide, but he was detected, and standing right over him Thompson drew his revolver and then called to his wife that he had the burglar and for her to call the police.

Not a move did the affrighted man make, who was caught red-handed, until Policeman Crowley came on the run and took him in custody.

At the station Silverstein, beyond giving his name and age, refused to say where he lived other than in Boston.

Arraigned in the court to-day Silverstein was held in $1,000 bail for a continued hearing, as the police wanted to detain him to find out if he has a record.

When covered by Thompson, who ordered hands up, the intruder pleaded as eloquently as he knew how not to be shot and to be allowed to go free.

NEAR DEATH BY WOUND, SAVES FOUR IN FLAMES

Bridgewater Man Drags Wife and Baby and Two Boarders from Blazing House.

THEN IS RESCUED HIMSELF

BRIDGEWATER, Aug. 27.—Bleeding from a nine-inch cut on his arm and choking and blinded by smoke, Thomas Turawco, a Polish merchant, fell exhausted in his burning house on Center street at an early hour to-day, after having rescued his wife and baby, Michael Batskas and Miss Petronell Bancewicz from the flames. Henry Shehan and Patrick Mahoney, who were attracted to the burning house by the screams of Mrs. Turawco, rushed into the flaming building, and at the risk of their lives groped through the smoke-filled rooms until they came upon the prostrate form of Turawco and then dragged him to safety.

Turawco awakened some time before daybreak and found his room filled with smoke. He attempted to arouse his wife, but she was overcome and did not respond to his shout. In his confusion he fell through a window and inflicted a deep cut on his arm and hung almost lifeless, half in and half out of the window. The cool air revived him, and he drew back into the room, and, rushing to the bed, pulled his nearly unconscious wife and child to the floor. Lying flat on the floor, where the smoke was less dense, they partially revived, and Turawco managed to get them to a window and lower them to the ground.

Turawco then made his way through the smoke and flames to the rooms of Batskas and Miss Bancewicz and succeeded in rousing them and getting them safely out of the building. He then attempted to reenter the burning building to recover some valuables when he was overcome. When he did not reappear Mrs. Turawco screamed for help.

Shehan and Mahoney rushed to the rescue.

The fire department and other nearby residents arrived and another party was about to enter the building to search for the three men when Shehan and Mahoney appeared at a window with Turawco, who was unconscious and nearly dead from loss of blood.

A physician worked for an hour to resuscitate Turawco and took fifteen stitches in the wound in his arm. He is now in the hospital and his condition is considered serious.

The house and barn, which were owned by Turawco and were valued at $2,500, were entirely destroyed.

"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN THAN THIS." How General Wardwell rescued his leper wife, fled with her to the desert, tried to contract the loathsome disease himself, and the pitiful end of the tragic romance. All told in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

WARSHIPS TRY A NEW COLOR

The auxiliary cruiser Yankee, at Charlestown navy yard, has been painted a deep slate green. Next Monday the ship will go to sea in her new paint for a series of tests as to at what distances she will be discernible in the new color, and how it acts in various sorts of weather.

The navy department recently decided that the white-painted warships were too easily seen at a distance and their identity and power were clearly disclosed as far as the eye or glasses could reach. Acting on the advice and recommendations of the general war board, of which Admiral Dewey is chairman, it was decided to have a series of practical experiments with various ships to absolutely prove the advantages of a more sombre color and to test, by practical methods, the various shades of green paint as a method of hiding a ship's approach.

Indigestion now a luxury and a fad. Adulteration of food is now made such a fine art that people eat all sorts of poisons with relish and enjoy many fancy modern diseases. See the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

HEAVY SENTENCE FOR MEN WHO BEAT OFFICER

Judge Murray, in the Municipal Court to-day, adjudged John Frasca, Thatcher street; Antonio Arinelta, alias Rafaele Gaeto, No. 122 Prince street, and Pasquale Carboni, No. 133 Endicott street, guilty of assault and battery o Patrolman Jeremiah Mahoney of the Hanover Street Station and of aiding in the escape of a prisoner on the night of August 13.

He sentenced each man to one year on assault and battery on Patrolman Jeremiah months for aiding the escape of a prisoner. In imposing sentence, Judge Murray said:

"I come to the conclusion that these men are guilty regretfully because it is so serious for them. This is the case of an officer of quiet and gentlemanly manner, who after giving a man a chance to go home, arrested him, and is surrounded by a crowd of cowards or their sympathizers and cruelly beaten. There is a very serious aspect in this case, for when a disgraceful scene like this takes place in the streets of Boston and the guilty go unpunished, I can feel that there is a serious hour in store for the citizens of the city. While I regret finding these men guilty, for their own sake I cannot do otherwise on the evidence."

MERGER FOR 3 TROLLEYS

J. L. Richards as president of the Middlesex & Boston, the Westboro & Hopkinton and the Natick & Cochituate Street Railways Companies to-day filed with the railroad commissioners a joint petition for consolidation. The petition states that a majority of the directors of each of these companies has agreed to the terms for said consolidation, and the Middlesex & Boston asks authority to issue 1,400 additional shares of its capital stock of a par value of $140,000, for the purpose of consummating the consolidation.

ROUGH-LOOKING, DOGS STEPS OF THE PRESIDENT

Detectives Detain Stranger, Who Was Anxious to Get at Roosevelt.

AT HOBOKEN R. R. STATION

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—When President Roosevelt arrived at the D. L. & W. station in Hoboken to-day on his way to Oyster Bay from the library dedication at Jordanville, a very rough looking man, unkempt and dressed in the garb of a laborer, detached himself from a small group of men of similar appearance at the end of the train shed, and walked with rapid strides after Mr. Roosevelt.

The President, Mrs. Roosevelt, Kermit and Ethel were on their way to the Sylph, which was to carry them up the Sound to Oyster Bay, and at Mr. Roosevelt's elbow strode Jim Sloan, head of the Secret Service, detailed as a guard for the President. Secret Service Men Murphy and Ritchey tagged along with Sloan, keping their eyes open to right and left for suspicious characters.

Stopped by an Officer.

The gait of the rough looking man, who seemed to be an Italian, increased. He was rapidly closing up the gap between himself and the Presidential party, when Detective McComisky, one of the railroad police, spotted him. McComisky made after the man and soon caught up with him. Catching him by the coat he whirled him about.

"What are you doing? Where are you going?" asked McComisky.

"I want to see the President," stammered the man.

"You'll not see the President," said the detective firmly. "You'll stay right here or I'll make you."

Forcibly restrained from going any further, the man turned about and disappeared rapidly in the crowd without giving any inkling of his reason for following the President. No attempt was made to arrest him. The little knot of roughly clad men in whose company he had been also melted away. Where they came from or who they were is not known.

Cheered by Crowd of 300.

The incident was not noticed by the President or any of the members of his party, who were too far ahead to hear the conversation which occurred between the detective and the man or see him chased away.

Nearly 300 commuters had gathered at the station and they gave the President a cheer to which he lifted his hat. Then he passed aboard the Slyph. On account of the rough weather it was said that the Sylph would be navigated with extra caution through the swift waters of Hell Gate and the Sound. The Sylph was expected at Oyster Bay at 11 o'clock.

The President was at Jordanville, Herkimer County, yesterday, attended the dedication of a public library presented to the village by Douglas Robinson.

RARE BARGAINS AT SHOE SALE

The Sheinwald Shoe Syndicate is conducting at Nos. 40-42 Summer street a sale of shoes which is said to be one of the most remarkable in regard to the amount of stock offered and prices asked ever known in Boston. The sale opened on Monday and has been attended by a great crowd of customers, who are eager to inspect a stock valued at thousands of dollars and which is advertised for sale at prices far below those usually charged for Luddy & Currier shoes.

The salesmen say that it is a rare opportunity for heads of households to provide every member of the family with footwear. The stock includes all styles of men's, women's and children's shoes. Other makes offered at this sale are the "George Snow," the "Crockett" and the "Walk Forever." This sale is described as a rare chance for mothers to fit out their children with school shoes at low expense. Goods made in three celebrated New England factories are offered, and the business being done at the store indicates that buyers have discovered that it is a place where there are bargains.

If You Are in Good Form, Stay That Way

Men, and Especially Women, Who Are Plump Are Most Liable To Get Too Fat.

Many women, taking pride in getting plump and just a little over-normal in weight, little suspect that they are cultivating what is bound to result in a serious overload of fat. They are teasing it on, and it will surely come, to rob the victim of her cherished beauty, grace and form.

There never was a beautiful fat woman, nor a handsome fat man. Beauty is seen only in normal people and often even in those who are really lean.

One of the most wonderful things that Rengo does is to reduce the weight to perfectly normal, where the patient is neither too fat, nor too lean.

This means that it does not take off so much flesh that it makes you look "ragged," but it takes just enough off to make you appear in perfect form. The flesh will be evenly distributed all over the body, and you will weigh just exactly what you should naturally weigh.

One of the surest ways to keep from getting fat is to take a little "Rengo" every few days. Don't fear that it will drag off too much flesh, because it will not reduce you below normal. On the other hand, Rengo is a health builder and it has been known to positively put flesh on very thin people and build them up to perfect weight and form. This shows what a powerful regulator it is. It is a beauty keeper and a beauty maker.

There is nothing "just as good" as Rengo. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per full sized box, or by mail prepaid, by the Rengo Co., 3,212 Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich. The company will gladly send you a trial package free by mail, if you write them direct to Detroit; no free packages at drug stores.

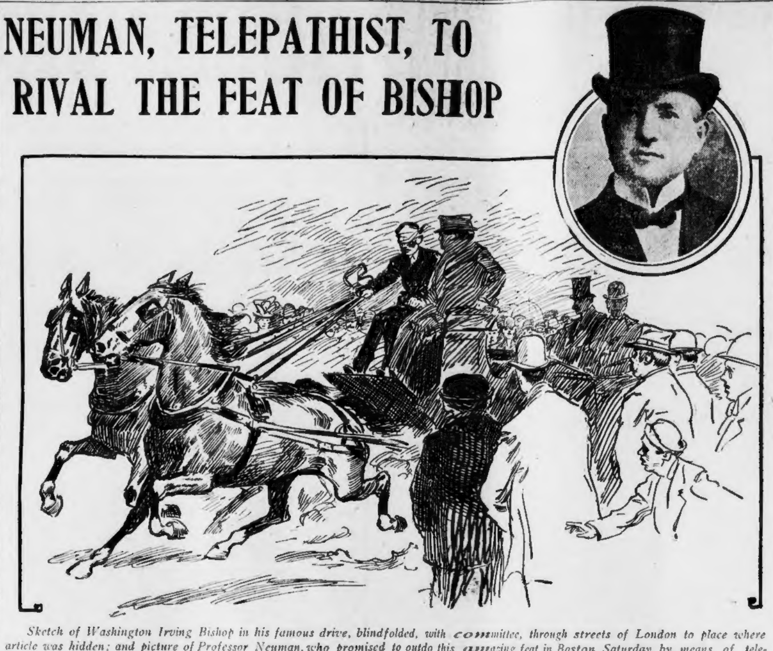
For sale in Boston by Jaynes Drug Co., five stores; Houghton & Dutton Co.; Henry Siegel Co., Washington and Essex Sts.; Woodward Drug Co., 100 Tremont St.; W. B. Hunt Co., 707 Washington St., 655 Mass. Ave., Cambridge, and 3 Pleasant St., Malden; Lewis & Co., 145 Washington St. and 130 Portland St.

Weak, Lazy Bowels

A free trial will convince you that Multo-Fruto is the most natural constipation cure known, because it contains tropical fruit-juices, and everybody knows that there is nothing so quick and thorough in curing chronic constipation and weak, fagged nerves as a fruit treatment. You can eat and enjoy it like fruit or candy.

Full sized packages, 25 and 50c, at drug stores. If your druggist has not got it, send your remittance to the Rengo Co., Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich., and they will send it prepaid. You can get a trial package of Multo-Fruto free only by writing to the above address. No free packages at druggists.

NEUMAN, TELEPATHIST, TO RIVAL THE FEAT OF BISHOP



Sketch of Washington Irving Bishop in his famous drive, blindfolded, with committee, through streets of London to place where article was hidden; and picture of Professor Neuman, who promised to outdo this amazing feat in Boston Saturday by means of telepathy, or mind-reading.

DECLARES HE WILL DRIVE BLINDFOLDED TO PLACE WHERE ARTICLE IS CONCEALED.

Can Neuman, the telepathist, outdo Washington Irving Bishop, the great mind reader, whose feat in London twenty-two years ago started the civilized world and has never since been equalled?

Neuman himself declares he can. He says he will do so in Boston.

This committee of Boston men, in whose fairness and keenness the public will have full confidence, will see personally whether Neuman can or cannot perform the feat:

William A. Barnes, instructor in psychology and president of the Psycho-Therapeutical Association, No. 35 St. Botolph street.

James P. Magenis, lawyer and member of the Boston School Committee, Tremont building.

Dr. George B. Buehler, physician, head of the Cambridge Relief Hospital, Boylston street.

Will Drive Saturday.

Under the supervision of this committee Nueman agrees to demonstrate his claim. He will depart from the BOSTON AMERICAN office at No. 80 Summer street at 12:30 o'clock Saturday, and, blindfolded, will drive the committee to a place which they have selected, where he will find an article which they have concealed.

The committee will keep the nature of the article and the place where it is concealed an absolute secret.

No member of the committee will communicate its nature or location to any person whatsoever.

Neuman will not even look at the committee as he drives a team, blindfolded, through the streets of Boston and finds what they have concealed.

By Power of Mind Reading.

This he guarantees to perform solely by the power of mind reading. He will read in the minds of the committeemen what the nature of the hidden article is. He will read in their minds where it is. And he will read in their minds what route to take while driving through the crowded streets.

The committee named has been selected by the BOSTON AMERICAN with these two essentials in view:

1—Men who are notably honest, in whose fairness the public will have complete confidence, and who may be relied upon to have the test absolutely one of Mr. Neuman's ability to read the human mind.

2—Men who are capable, by reason of their own peculiar abilities, of determining whether Neuman actually reads the mind or whether his act is one of legerdemain.

The names of this committee alone will be sufficient guarantee that the article selected and the place of concealment will be unknown to Neuman or any other person.

The famous performance which Neuman undertakes to excel is still considered the greatest demonstration of the science of mental telepathy ever made. When Washington Irving Bishop drove, blindfolded, through the streets of London and found an unknown article previously concealed, the circumstances under which he did it amazed the world. It startled particularly those scientists who were just then beginning to make a psychical study of the power of one human mind to obtain an insight into another mind without the medium of spoken or written word or visible outward sign.

Classed as Witchcraft.

Before that what is now known as mental telepathy had been first classed as witchcraft and later as legerdemain.

Upon scientific study, however, it was found that such a power actually existed, to a greater or less extent, in all human minds, and it has ever since been an object of exact scientific study.

Bishop demonstrated this power to a greater degree than any known person who had ever preceded him. He undertook his public test for a wager of $2,500, and it was done in the presence of a committee of medical men, whose conclusions could not be refuted. They declared that Bishop had fairly and squarely won the wager.

Bishop obtained his knowledge of the article, its location and a safe route through the crowded streets by means of what is known as visible contact. One of the members of the committee held his wrist and declared that through the communication of mental impressions to the nerves of this man, thence to the muscles and then to the nerves in Bishop's wrist the impressions were clearly and completely transmitted to Bishop's mind.

No Visible Contact.

Here is how Neuman undertakes to outdo Bishop:

He will have absolutely no visible contact. He agrees to read the mind without even looking in the direction of the committee. None of the members of the committee will be in contact with him.

Between now and Saturday noon the committee will meet and will secretly select an article to be hidden. The committee will then drive to some spot and hide this article. Neuman says that he does not place any restriction whatever on the size or nature of the article or on the place where it shall be concealed.

He will come to the BOSTON AMERICAN office Saturday noon and will then first meet the committee selected. He will then submit to blindfolding, will mount the box of a carriage and says he will drive the committee to the hiding place and find the article.

The only stipulation he makes is this: While he is blindfolded and driving horses and carriage through busy, crowded Boston streets, in full view of all the multitude who will be on the sidewalks to watch him, the members of the committee must, each and all, concentrate their minds upon the object they have hidden.

He will concentrate his mind upon the minds of the committee, until gradually there will come into his mental vision a picture of the object he is searching for and the place where it is concealed. Then he will drive there in triumph.

Neuman seeks no financial reward, he says. He will have reward enough, he says, if he can establish by a stupendous test the superiority of mind over matter.

Can Neuman perform this feat and fulfil every detail of the remarkable task he has set?

The committee and the public will be convinced when they see.

They will answer the question Saturday.

This Committee Will Supervise Neuman Test

This committee of Boston men will conceal an article, which they alone will know, and which Neuman, the mind reader, guarantees to find, through mental telepathy in the greatest test of the kind on record:

WILLIAM A. BARNES, instructor in psychology and president of the Psycho-Therapeutical Association.

JAMES P. MAGENIS, lawyer and member of the School Committee.

DR. GEORGE B. BUEHLER, physician and head of the Cambridge Relief Hospital.

SOCIETY BRIDE FLEES RICE BY FIRE LADDER

City Firemen Aid Well-Known Lynn Girl to Escape Friends in Romantic Fashion.

LYNN, Aug. 27.—A society couple eluded guests at their wedding here yesterday in a most romantic manner. To escape the usual shower of rice and old shoes they adopted means of exit which suggested an elopement, although already husband and wife. The social prominence of the couple added interest to their ruse.

After Miss Celia Judkins, a charming brunette, and Charles Clark, a well-known singer of Meriden, Ct., were married by the Rev. E. J. Tilotson of Swampscott at the home of the bride's father, Dr. F. L. Judkins, No. 7 Mason street, yesterday afternoon the newly wed got away from the guests to the second floor of the house for a moment on some pretext and there climbed down a twenty-five-foot ladder to the ground.

The ladder had been placed in the rear of the house by firemen from the Fayette street engine house not far away. The fire fighters entered very heartily into the spirit of adventure and were all ready to bear the blushing bride down the ladder in stalwart arms, if such service should be needed. There was a carriage in waiting a few doors away and while the guests were making merry the bride and groom were riding away.

The wedding party was very much surprised when they found that Mr. and Mrs. Clark had fled and that all plans for making merry at their expense had gone awry.

Mrs. Clark is one of the most popular young women in Lynn. She is very much interested in athletic sports for women, and is said to be devoted to horses.

PASTOR, FATHER OF VAUDEVILLE, IS DEAD AT 71

Veteran Showman Began Career With $2 He Found in Street.

WON WEALTH AND FAME

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Antonio (Tony) Pastor, the theatrical manager, known as the father of vaudeville, is dead at his home at Elmhurst, L. I., after an illness of several weeks, at the age of seventy-one years.

With $2 which he found on the street, Tony Pastor started his professional career by investing the money in a tambourine, wig and burnt cork. He practiced earnestly, and to the surprise of his parents got an engagement in short order and continued to rise until he became a very wealthy man.

He was born in New York city in May, 1835. His father was a dealer in perfumery and was also connected with the Park Theatre as a member of the orchestra. Tony was brought up in the atmosphere of the theatre and took a great liking to that life.

When only six years old he was singing at meetings of the Hand to Hand Temperance Society.

His inclination for the stage proved irrepressible. He was permitted to make his professional appearance as "an infant prodigy," and as such he came out at Barnum's Museum, where his good vocalism made a distinctly favorable impression. He appeared as minstrel, clown, ring master, actor, dancer and pantomimist throughout the country, for a time being at the old Federal Street Theatre in Boston.

In 1865 Mr. Pastor determined to devote himself to the vaudeville stage and to improve it. Smoking and the sale of liquors had always been allowed in the variety music halls. He determined to abolish those customs, and in association with Sam Sharpley he leased the Vokes Garden, 201 Bowery, and turned it into a neat, handsome little theatre. He had already tried the experiment of clean vaudeville at Paterson, N. J., and he felt confident of success in attracting the better elements of the community.

His plan succeeded, and he has ever since persisted in the policy and method then adopted. In October, 1875, he opened his theatre at No. 585 Broadway, where, from time to time, he introduced performers, some from abroad, others of native origin, who have since become distinguished. Nat Goodwin appeared there February 5, 1876.

In 1881 Mr. Pastor established his present theatre in the Tammany building, and there he maintained a high standard of vaudeville performance and met with abundant and richly deserved success. Among the distinguished performers from abroad whom he there introduced to the American public mention may be made of Jenny Hill, Vesta Tilley, Bessie Bonehill, Bessie Bellwood and Vesta Victoria.

He was vice-president of the Actors' fund, trustee in several charitable organizations and employed many hundreds to cater to the amusement of New York's big population.

ACQUIT GIRL IN BROCKTON POISON CASE

Special to the Boston American.

BROCKTON, Aug. 27.—Miss Gladys E. Dyer, the pretty sixteen-year-old Brockton girl accused of attempting to poison the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ma Dan, was acquitted in the local police court today after a hearing before Judge Fred M. Bixby which lasted nearly three hours.

No witness was offered by the prosecution to corroborate the story told by Mrs. Ma Dan that the girl had given the little boy poisoned candy and then thrown carbolic acid in his face. Neither was Henry T. Dearth, a boarder in the house where the Dyer and Ma Dan families live, corroborated in his statement that he had seen the girl hide letters which, it was claimed, would incriminate if written by her. The girl was arrested on Saturday and declared she was innocent.

SAYS REIGN OF BIG HATS WILL BE CONTINUED

Miss Lillian Schaffer, Millinery Expert for Siegel's, Just Back From Trip to Europe.

TALKS OF COMING STYLE

"Large hats are still the vogue for women, for during my visit in Paris I did not see one "pill box" hat worn by any woman or displayed in the Parisian establishments where the latest creations for women are designed, made and sent all over the world," declared Miss Lillian Schaffer, foreign millinery designer for the Henry Siegel Company, to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day. Miss Schaffer has just returned from Paris, where she studied the latest creations in women's headwear.

"This is the "Directoire period," when women are wearing severe dresses, and in order to look well they must wear large hats," continued Miss Schaffer. "This era in women's clothes is similar to the period when the Directorship ruled in France. Then, as now, the women wore dresses of severe design and large hats. "Pill box" hats are unheard of in the Parisian capital. "Pill box" hats, I take it, are turbans. These hats are worn instead of caps during the ocean voyages. Large hats could not be worn when the wind is blowing.

"The latest creation which is being displayed in the shop windows of Paris is the large Marie Louise hat, twenty-five inches broad and nearly seventy inches around. It is a large, flat hat of the Gainsborough type, turned down in the front like a Shepherdess. It is trimmed with a profusion of long, swaying plumes. Large mushroom hats are being worn, as are large beaver hats, trimmed with the new Pochohontas breasts.

"The new Marie Louise hats are being introduced in Boston and they will create as much comment as the "Merry Widow" hats. The so-called "Pill Box" hats would be quite out of keeping with the Directoire gown that is being worn by the fashionable woman in all parts of the world. This is not the period for the polo hat. It would not be consistent to wear a small hat with a Directoire gown."

CUMMINGS TO NAME JURY IN BEAUTY TEST

National Leader of A. O. H. Will Appoint Board to Select Fairest Colleen.

President Matthew Cummings of the A. O. H. has been asked by the BOSTON AMERICAN to appoint the committee which will serve as judges in the Celtic beauty contest. The judges will be prominent members of Irish organizations in this city, and they will have before them the finest collection of photographs of beautiful Celtic girls ever seen in Massachusetts. It is doubtful if the pictures of so many pretty girls were ever gathered in competition anywhere.

The contest closes at 6 p. m. Tuesday next, so there only remain five more days in which to send in pictures. Basketfuls of them are arriving at the BOSTON AMERICAN office every day. Every mail brings some. There are all types of beauty entered. Some of the girls are Junoesque, some are petite, but all have charms of face and figure. It has been shown that Boston redounds in loveliness of the Celtic type, and it is claimed that this type surpasses all others.

Offer of a Hundred Dollars.

Photographs should be sent to the Beauty Contest Editor. The name and address of the original of each photo should be plainly written on the back of the picture. This will prevent confusion and error.

The girl who is pronounced the most beautiful of all will receive a check for $100 from the BOSTON AMERICAN, and in addition she will have an opportunity for a stage career. Andrew Mack, now the star in "Arrah-na-Pogue," at the Park Theatre, will offer the winner a position in his company. What the committee of judges decide will be acquiesced in by the popular Irish comedian and by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

There is the greatest interest shown in the contest throughout Greater Boston. It is also a theme of debate in many other cities in Massachusetts. Every place which has any Celtic population at all thinks it has the prettiest Celt in the State. But the prize is for the prettiest Celtic girl in Boston. Most of the counties in Ireland are represented in the contest.

Several Natives of Green Isle.

It is a question whether Cork, Wexford, Roscommon, Tipperary or some other county in the Green Isle will rejoice in the winner. Most of the contestants were born in America but of Irish parentage, but there are not a few real colleens from the old sod.

Indigestion now a luxury and a fad. Adulteration of food is now made such a fine art that people eat all sorts of poisons with relish and enjoy many fancy modern diseases. See the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Oily Hair Dry Hair Dandruff

Some people's hair is too oily and greasy.

Some people's hair is too dry.

Others have falling hair, and still others are badly troubled with dandruff.

There are at least a hundred different things recommended for these various forms of hair troubles, but you know by experience that most of them do you no good—some do you actual harm.

You ought to be willing to try the newest remedy, which is called Birt's Head Wash, and is sold in most of the drug stores.

A few druggists have not yet put in a supply, but any druggist can quickly get you a package from his wholesaler if you will call his attention to the matter.

Birt's Head Wash removes the excess oil and grease from the head, and replaces them with just a trace of cocoanut oil—just enough to give a delicate sheen and silky gloss to the hair. It also removes all disagreeable odors.

If the hair is too dry, Birt's Head Wash will supply the right quantity of oil to put the hair in a natural and healthy condition.

If the hair is falling out, and if the scalp is covered with dandruff, Birt's Head Wash will clean the head of all scales and impurities, open up the pores leading to the hair follicles, and restore the scalp to a healthy condition.

Maybe this seems like a lot of things for a single remedy to do, but Birt's Head Wash surely does them.

It is made of the following ingredients: Refined Soap, White of Eggs, Glycerin, Cochin Cocoanut Oil and Salicylic Acid.

These are things long known to be good for nearly all hair troubles, and your own doctor or druggist will bear witness that this statement is true.

Don't use common soap or common shampoos on your head.

They are apt to contain too much alkali, and anyhow they are pretty sure to leave your scalp and hair dry, which is a bad thing to happen to anybody.

Don't use "tonics," or "invigorators," or "growers," or "renewers" that contain alcohol, for alcohol is said to turn the hair gray in a short time.

Don't use anything on your hair unless you know exactly what it is made of.

Secret formulas may be dangerous, because you don't know what they are.

A safe rule is this: Use Birt's Head Wash, because you KNOW what it is made of. Don't use other so-called hair remedies, because you DON'T know what they are made of.

Birt's Head Wash is the newest and best thing for the head and hair on the market, and your druggist either has it on sale now, or can telephone his wholesaler and get a package for you in a very short time.

BLAMES STOCK EXCHANGE FOR BROWN CRASH

Official Statement of Failed Firm Reveals Defiant Attitude Toward Banks.

MARKED FOR SLAUGHTER

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The first official statement of the causes that led to the failure on Tuesday of the brokerage house of A. O. Brown & Co., was issued by E. F. Buchanan after a conference with his associates, Albert O. Brown and Lewis Ginter Young, last night and early to-day, in Mr. Brown's rooms at the Waldorf Astoria.

The statement reveals a defiant attitude on the part of the firm toward the New York Stock Exchange and lends color to the report in financial circles that the firm had been marked for slaughter by the exchange as well as by the banks, as a warning to other similarly inclined.

That members of the firm were examined yesterday by the investigating committee of the Stock Exchange, became known for the first time after the statement was issued. Mr. Buchanan said of the failure:

Refusal to Certify Checks.

"It was caused by the sudden refusal of our banks to certify our checks as they had always done and by the attitude of the New York Exchange. There will be but a small margin between the liabilities and assets."

Mr. Buchanan added: "I will not at this time disclose the names of any of our principals as you will concede that until the firm's affairs are straightened out, such information must be withheld.

"Yesterday Mr. Brown, Mr. Young and myself were summoned to the New York Stock Exchange in connection with the investigation being conducted into last Saturday's business. We were unable to answer all the questions put to us without referring to our books, and some of the questions were of a character that we consider impertinent. Some of them referred to were in regard to a hundred shares of Canadian Pacific which were tendered at our window by a messenger of another firm who owed us the stock, which stock we owed another firm, according to the clearing house ticket sent out as usual every morning.

Explains Stock Transaction.

"One of our clerks received the hundred shares of Canadian Pacific and delivered them to Tripp & Company, who gave us their check in payment.

"During the investigation by the special stock exchange committee great importance seemd to be placed on the transaction. Of course, our clerk did not give a check for shares when the block was thrown into his window. After we were dismissed from the stock exchange committee room, I investigated the case, and our clerk explained that he was awfully busy when the stock was delivered and had told the boy to call later for his check.

"After our assignment I have a slight recollection that a member of the firm that delivered the shares came to our office and complained that he had not received his check.

"He was told we were sorry we had not given our attention to it earlier, but as the firm was in the hands of an assignee we were powerless to correct any errors made during the day.

Firm's Books Wide Open.

"The special investigating committee appeared highly indignant and angry because of the position taken by members of our firm in declining to answer offhand questions put to us, and we have written the following letter to the secretary of the Stock Exchange explaining:

"'In connection with the interview we had with your committee, we beg to say that, inasmuch as we were unable to answer many of its questions without referring to our books we shall be glad to have your committee examine our books, providing the assignee has no objection, in order that you may get full and accurate information on all points and questions.'"

FIRST STATEMENT OF CAMPAIGN FUNDS

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—The first official statement of national campaign funds was made to-day by Treasurer Haskell of the Democratic National Committee, dealing with funds turned in by five daily newspapers and the Commoner, their contributions reacning a total of $10,438. In connection with the statement, Moses C. Wetmore of the Finance Committee said that other papers which had set marks as high as $3,000 for their offerings would be heard from later.

THE MORAL OF "THE DEVIL"

Thoughts Suggested by the Great Play, Now Being Produced by Two Rival Managers in New York

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

IN every human organization dwell the Twins—the Angel and the Demon.

The Angel is the real self; the enduring, immortal self, which goes on from life to life, from planet to planet, until it has made the circuit and ended where it began—at the Source.

The Demon is man made; it belongs to the changing, perishable bodies which are created anew with each incarnation; and it goes down, and out, into nothingness with the disintegration of the animal body.

But with each new body, the mortal being usually invents, or adopts, a new Devil.

A few great souls have passed along through earth without such demoniacal association; Christ, the latest and greatest of the Masters, held converse with the Devil once, on the mountain top, when he was tempted; but that was his only acquaintance with him, because he had finished his circuit, and was ready to become one with God.

A weak man or woman, with good intentions and desirous of leading a moral life, but lacking will power, and inclined to be timid, and fearful, and negative in thought, often adopts a Devil formed by some selfish and licentious person, who fashions Devils by the wholesale and sends them out to roam over the earth, seeking an open door in a weak mind.

When such occurrences are analyzed they are usually called hypnotism.

In every liquor saloon, in every gambling den, in every boldly vicious and immoral place, about every race track and pool room, Devils swarm. And the weak, the dissipated, the thoughtless and the irresponsible minds are the open doors for them to mass through, into dominion of the human citadel.

In many drawing rooms of fashion, in brilliant restaurants and hotels, where the elite congregate; in sensuously decorated studios, Devils also wait day and night, knowing that they will be entertained, if not welcomed, by some of the self-indulgent frequenters of these places.

Many are the devices employed by the Devils of earth to bring about the desired results.

Drink, drugs, avarice, money mania, jealousy, love of power, desire to outshine neighbors, lust, sensuality, gross appetites, gourmandism, love of praise, personal conceit and egotism, selfishness in every form—all these are webs which the Devil spin about humanity.

Even beautiful, romantic sentiment, memory and imagination become aids of the Devil, at times, when coarser and more common methods fail in the snaring of a refined soul.

Many a good wife, who shrinks with horror at the thought of a vulgar amour, or of any act which could pain or anger her husband, has been led into the Devil's net by indulging in retrospective dreams of a vanished romance and through the stirring of old ashes to see if one little spark remained.

Letter writing is a favorite pastime of almost all Devils. Once they get a romantic man or woman, with a pen in hand and an unoccupied chamber in the heart, and the breed of Devils who hang about the domestic hearth, hoping to find rooms to let, chuckle in glee.

Wives who have believed themselves happy and satisfied, husbands who have been unconscious of any lack in their lives had fallen by the wayside through an interesting correspondence with some sympathetic "affinity," who was Devil-instructed to lead them into trouble.

After a man or woman falls into the Devil's snare they both call it Fate and proclaim their inability to combat the powerful influence of "destiny."

But destiny is man himself.

The Angel dwells always within him, ready to say, "Get thee behind me, Satan," if the man really wants it said.

The Angel and the Devil both are completely under the man's control; the work of man, here in this sphere and in every other, is to develop the character which will enable him to get back to the Source.

Unless the man directs the Angel to take the ascendancy, there would be no growth in wisdom for him were the Angel to interpose. So he remains silent and lets the Devil do his work, in order that man may find out for himself the pain and folly of such dominion; and in order that when he again encounters the Devil, either in this plane of existence or some other, he may be able to say as Christ said, "Get thee behind me."

Always have there been Devils; always will there be Devils, while humanity is evolving from the lower to the higher states.

But always is there the Angel, ready to lead the soul to conquest and victory if the soul will call.

HE who possesses virtue at its best,
Or greatness in the true sense of the word,
Has one day started even with that herd
Whose swift feet now speed but at sin's behest.

It is the same force in the husband breast
Which makes men gods or demons. If we gird
Those strong emotions by which we are stirred
With might of will and purpose, heights unguessed
Shall dawn for us; or if we give them sway
We can sink down and consort with the lost.
All virtue is worth just the price it cost.
Black sin is oft white truth that missed its way
And wandered off in paths not understood.
Twinborn I hold great evil and great good.

The Manicure Lady

He Was a Very Smooth Stranger and He Took Her In

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"OH, George," laughed the Manicure Lady, "that boy that just went out of here was the dearest kid you ever saw."

"He looked very much Cohoes to me," said the Head Barber. "You oughtn't to take a shine to a young minor leaguer like that—a smooth little piece of bric-a-brac like you."

"I did take a shine to him, though," said the Manicure Lady. "Do you know why, George? I took a shine to him because he was so innocent—one of them fresh-hearted kids that you see out in the country.

"Of course, George, I ain't no worldly woman of forty that has sounded all them heights and depths of human emotions but in this business a girl likes to meet somebody once in a while that acts natural.

"I have been kidded by some of the smoothest propositions that ever had their nails did anywhere, and I always managed to hold up my side of it and shoot back the salve.

"I have been courted (manicurely speaking) by men which has played Romeo on the stage, and I have been courted by men which is too fat to play Romeo because they couldn't climb up on the balcony.

Has Been Wooed in Every Trade

"I have been wooed, for that matter, by men which climbed many a balcony without playing Romeo, because as a general thing these second story men and wireless wire tappers is men of much refinement, that likes to keep their nails trimmed and shining.

"Oh, yes, George, I have seen about every type there is, from the silky confidence man to the Tough Guy Levi, from the parson to the prize fighter, and that is why I liked that kid. He was so different."

"If I was you, I wouldn't take up with no Rube," said the Head Barber. "It's all right for one of them to be able to tell you which is rye and which is barley when they see it waving in the field, or to be able to milk Jane, the Jersey cow; but when it comes to supporting a girl of your dainty and cityfied type they wouldn't be there any more than a policeman.

"Pick out some good, sober, hard-working broker, and you'll be in a flat that overlooks the Fens. Don't marry a cluck."

"Bless your heart," laughed the Manicure Lady. "I wasn't entertaining no thoughts of marrying. I was simply interested in the kid, because he was so innocent. It's the first time I have did the nails of an innocent since I landed in this precarious profession.

He Was So Cute and Innocent

"It was the cutest thing, George, to hear him trying to be a flirt. 'I think you have a very sweet face,' he says to me the minute I began work. 'I think you have the sweetest face I have ever saw, except Molly Malarkey, the girl I left behind me.'

"'Is there any sociables on Thursday nights here in Boston? I wish you would go with me, and then, maybe, Sunday night we could go to Young People's Meeting and stay to the sermon. I am awful lonesome here in Boston,' he says to me.

"I reckon I'm kind o' cynical, George, but I didn't have the nerve to kid that youngster. I told him as gentle as I could, that there wasn't no church sociables here to amount to anything, because it is such a big town that folks can go to some other part of it when there is anything doing in the sociable line.

"But I told him that maybe we could arrange to go to Young People's Meeting next Sunday, and that I would telephone him. He gave his telephone number, and I may call him up at that.

"'I don't like all this noise of the city,' he says to me. 'I like the quiet places, like where I was brought up. I like to go fishing in the trout streams,' he says, 'when the sun is just barely up and the dew is on the grass. Don't you love the early morning dew?' he asks me. Wasn't that sweet, George?

George Has to Wake Her Up

"Honest, when a kid like him comes in and talks like that to me, after all the slush that is handed out about my beautiful eyes and my dimples, I could almost cry.

"I don't like to take up with no strangers, but I'm just going to call him up, the more I think of it, and go to that Young People's meeting. It would be great to feel young again. I am awfully old after this three years in Boston."

The Head Barber smiled sadly.

"Come out of it, kiddo," he said. "This has gone far enough. Do you happen to know who that young fellow was? Of course you don't.

"Listen. That was Charlie Chase, better known to those who love him as Confidence Carl, the Counterfeiter. He's the smoothest ever, and has just come from over the river, where the lockstep is in vogue. Do not trust him, gentle maiden, though his voice be low and sweet."

The Right Kind of Husband

The World Would Be Happier If More Were Like Him

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young married man, who wishes to write a kind and loving wife a letter congratulating her on our third year of married life. Would ask if you will kindly tell me what kind of a letter to write.
S. D. H.

I WONDER how many men are thoughtful enough to remember to pay their wives a delicate little compliment like that.

There is no doubt about that man being a good husband, nor about his appreciating the fact that he has a good wife.

Many men appreciate their wives, but they do not express their appreciation; and that is just what every woman craves. She wants to be told that she is loved, she does not want to take it for granted.

Think how happy the average wife would be if on, say her tenth wedding anniversary, she received a note from her husband telling her what a good wife and friend she had been to him all these years, and how happy she had made him.

The greatest joy that can come to a wife is to be told that she has been a help to her husband.

Every good wife is a help to her husband, and he is ten thousand times better off with her than he would be living as a lonely, forlorn old bachelor.

The mere fact that she has been patient and good and has put up with all his whims makes a man owe his wife a letter of thanks and appreciation.

The young man who wants to know what to say in his letter to his wife might tell her that if he had it to do over again he would still choose her out of all the world as the one woman; that every day he is thankful for her love and companionship, and that she has been a blessing to him, the best thing that has come into his life.

Perhaps in their fiftieth anniversary, if they are both spared, he will write her the same kind of a letter.

It would be a good idea if all the husbands—and wives, too, for that matter—who read these words should make up their minds to write similar letters to their life partners when the next anniversary comes around.

Are Seven Out of Eight Married Couples Unhappy?

NO question discussed in the public prints for years has given more vital lessons from the school of human experience than are to be found in the letters from BOSTON AMERICAN readers in answer to the question:

Are seven out of eight married couples unhappy?

Unfortunately, the unhappy husbands and wives are more ready to tell their side of the story than the happy ones; but many interesting letters are received daily on both sides of the case. Some of them are printed here.

What do YOU think about it? Write your answer on one side of the paper only, and send it to "Magazine Page Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, 80 Summer street, Boston."

Man Is Chiefly to Blame.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I say yes, seven out of eight married couples fail of perfect happiness, and there are more unhappy wives than unhappy husbands. For the reason that seven out of eight men enter into matrimony with a wrong conception of its obligations and privileges, due to the low view of the marriage relation which has prevailed ever since man began to use his intelligence to obtain the pleasure of sense in disregard of divine (i. e., natural) law.

Throughout creation—mankind aside—the female determines the exercise of the function of reproduction. The instincts of the normal unspoiled woman rebel against any violation of natural law, and if, because of legal and social usage, she is compelled to submit to such violations in the sacred name of love, though her moral sense may be dulled so that conscience offers no protest, the instinctive feeling of degradation and wrong operates to warp the whole nature, and as a result she becomes either the crushed slave to her master's appetite, or a rebel, ready to seek any avenue of escape from a thraldom which has the sanction of law and custom and cannot be openly broken without inviting misjudgment and condemnation.

This, I believe, to be the fundamental cause of most marital infelicity. Man, having the sanction of law and custom in enforcing his own selfish desires, is more apt to be satisfied with the present status of marriage than is woman.

Most Marriages Demoralizing?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I am inclined to agree with Dr. Mitchell that unhappiness, or rather a decided degree of discontent, prevails in seven out of eight marriages. This discontentment in many cases is quietly borne from day to day, and is now and then inflamed by conditions as they arise. The scandal of separations and divorces, together with the fear of discussion of your private affairs among your friends and acquaintances, holds in check many persons who continue to live in an atmosphere of discontent, unfitting them for ambitious efforts and gradually lowering their self-respect. I believe that a large percentage of marriages have a tendency to lower rather than elevate the moral condition of man and woman.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT THE GIRL'S FAULT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man twenty-three years of age. I know a young lady five years my senior. I like this girl very much and think she cares for me also. Why I hesitate telling her that I love her is because her parents are parted. She lives with her mother. She is pretty, educated and well bred. Do you think that her parents being separated ought to keep me back from marrying her? I am a prosperous business man and have all good habits.
A. R.

THAT the girl's parents are parted is her misfortune, not her fault. If she is a wise girl and you care for her, I see no reason why you should not marry her. If she has had an unhappy life you may be able to bring some happiness into it.

A FOOLISH GIRL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a very sweet girl for about eighteen months. She tells me that she loves me very much and is willing to marry me at any time. I earn a good salary, but wish to put off marrying until I have a little more set aside to start my home with. What worries me more than anything else is her unreasonable jealousy. She daily takes me to task for being too attentive to other girls, while, as a matter of fact, I never give a thought to any other beside herself. It has come to such a point that she speaks of any and every girl whom by chance I may know, calling them by the most insulting names and accusing them of trying to set me against her. There is no reason for her to act in such a manner, as no man could be truer in every act and thought to his sweetheart than I have been to her; but a man can't allow his sweetheart to say insulting things about girls, even though he is not in the least interested in them. Do you think if we get married she will continue to be jealous and doubtful of me? She seems to think that I would be unfaithful to her, and makes me very unhappy, continually showing me what a poor estimation she has of my character.
AN UNHAPPY LOVER.

I THINK you will have to take a very firm stand with her. Tell her that though you love her dearly you will have to give her up if she continues her foolishness. If she keeps it up I really think you would be foolish to marry her, as it would only mean great misery for both of you in the future. The poor foolish child, of course, suffers even more than you do, through her unreasoning jealousy.

The Confessions of a Summer Girl

Really, Elaine Didn't Prove to Be the Kind of Girl She Thought She Was

I LIKE the hotel at the lake ever so much, but when Elaine asked me to come and spend a few days at her cottage I welcomed the chance. It would be so much more quiet and restful there.

Then, when Elaine's brother comes up for week-ends he always brings two or three interesting men with him. Not that I am dependent on men for entertainment.

I think a girl who does not like other girls makes such a mistake, because if the women get down on one they can do so many unpleasant things in the way of cutting one out—but naturally I am always glad to meet new people.

The cottage is near the village and there is a very handsome curate assisting the rector this year. I had met him at a tea at Elaine's, so when he called one morning just before lunch and I chanced to be on Elaine's front porch alone I welcomed him cordially, not thinking it necessary to disturb Elaine, who was upstairs running ribbons and straightening her room. I always try to be thoughtful of other people.

Proves the Hero

Just as Mr. Dykeman and I got nicely started on the subject of canoeing I saw something run across the veranda floor and I screamed, for I knew it was a chipmunk.

I suppose it is really true, as Elaine says, that they cannot prevent the chipmunks coming down the fireplace chimney, but it seems to me they might do something, for it is very startling to have one of the creatures race across your bed at night or sit up in front of you in the living room and eat nuts when you don't expect it.

Mr. Dykeman said not to be afraid and he'd drive it out, so I stood on a chair while he went after the chipmunk.

As he had forgotten to open the screen door of the porch the chipmunk ran into the house and got behind the piano, and as it was a hot day Mr. Dykeman melted his collar and got red in the face running it out of there.

When it dashed on the porch again and headed for my chair I shrieked, because it climbed right up at me.

In my excitement I grabbed Mr. Dykeman about the neck when he rushed over saying there was no danger. He looked so handsome and brave that I am sure he would have acted the same way if it had been a lion.

Just then the chipmunk whirled and climbed up his trouser leg, and I never saw a better imitation of clog dancing in my life. I had no idea it was part of the curriculum for curates.

Of course, by this time the noise we had made had drawn the family attention, and there was no more cozy conversation with Mr. Dykeman.

Elaine said, coldly, "Oh, it is just a chipmunk you are so afraid of?" and opened the screen door and the animal trotted out as if it had been trained. I think it looks affected for a girl to pretend not to be afraid of things.

Made a Great Fuss

Then Elaine made a great fuss about getting Mr. Dykeman something cool to drink, and her mother and aunt helped. There being nothing for me to do, I wandered down to the boathouse and got out the canoe.

I think there is nothing quite so picturesque as a pretty girl—that is, I mean a girl in fresh white linen—in a green canoe. I haven't paddled much, but I row a boat, and it seemed as if canoeing would be easy to a person of intelligence and adaptability.

However, in a few minutes the canoe tipped over. Elaine's brother said later that I must have had one more hairpin on one side of my head than on the other side and it overbalanced.

Mr. Dykeman was just coming along the bank. Merely throwing off his coat, he plunged in and swam out to me, where I was clinging to the paddle and floating. By the time he got me ashore quite a crowd had gathered.

It was unfortunate that Elaine's brother and two college friends should have arrived on the noon train, for they were among the watchers. I like to make a good first impression.

If Elaine had been the kind of girl I had thought her she would have detained them on some pretext or other.

Very Thrilling!

It was very thrilling to be rescued by Mr. Dykeman, though Elaine took such an unpleasant view of the situation. She said Mr. Dykeman had a small salary and he had entirely ruined what was perhaps his only good suit of clothes, and it was too bad.

I decided on the spot that she was in love with Mr. Dykeman. Otherwise she would not have taken such a painful interest in his affairs.

I suppose it would have been better for him to have let me down and preserved his wardrobe intact, but when I told Elaine as much she said something about my being absurd.

I returned to the hotel the next day, for I really was vexed at Elaine. Besides, one of the college men was engaged and the other was homely, while, as for Elaine's brother, I never am quite sure whether he is laughing at me or not. Such a feeling is very disturbing.

Use of a Flatiron

IT isn't every young woman who knows the value and economy of the flatiron. I see hundreds of women in a week who look shabby and floppy just because their veils, coats, skirts and trimmings generally need pressing. Lady's maids spend hours and hours over the ironing boards so as to insure their mistresses' gowns and coats looking well groomed. Notice at your next evening party the number of tumbled lace tuckers, creased sashes and messy odds and ends which give their wearers such a disheveled appearance. It doubles the life of a coat and skirt to iron it periodically. It's an economical and smart habit to start a pressing day occasionally and smooth over your entire wardrobe. Try it and you will be surprised at the difference it makes in your appearance.

HOW TO KEEP PRESERVES

NEWLY made preserves if set opened in the sun for several days will keep through the Summer without fermenting. This is worth trying.

TO PRESERVE QUINCES.

One peck of ripe quinces; put into a kettle, cover with cold water and cook until soft. Put in earthen dish, and when cool enough to handle remove skins, cut open one side and remove core, being careful not to break fruit in handling. Take their weight in sugar, put in a kettle with a quart of water; let boil and skim until clear. Put in your quinces. Two oranges and thin [illegible] with the fruit is an improvement. Boil in syrup half an hour; take ladle and take out fruit and boil juice sufficiently, then pour it over the fruit.

MISS MALONEY REMAINS WIFE OF OSBORNE

Opposition by Family to Wedding with Clarkson Causes Remarkable Move.

ADJOURN LEGAL ACTION

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—A remarkable turn was taken in the proceeding to annul the marriage of Miss Helen Maloney, daughter of Martin Maloney, a Philadelphia millionaire, to Arthur Herbert Osborne, a New York broker, when the motion for final judment was called in the Supreme Court to-day.

Opposition by the family to her proposed wedding to Samuel R. Clarkson with whom she eloped is believed to have caused the withdrawal of the action. Miss Maloney is thus left Osborne's wife.

An interlocutory decree annulling the marriage had been granted and it was to have been made final by Justice Bischoff to-day. After this action it had been expected that iMss Maloney would remarry Clarkson. She and Clarkson were married abroad, Miss Maloney believing that her marriage to Osborne which was done under assumed names as a joke and was not binding. Miss Maloney disappeared after her escapades with Clarkson and was away for a long time. After the interlocutory decree was granted, however, she returned to her home but only disappeared again and was said to have rejoined Clarkson.

A. L. Humes of No. 24 Broad street, counsel for the Maloney family, and the attorney for Mr. Osborne, were in court today. The only announcement made was:

"Adjourned by consent indefinitely."

This means that Miss Maloney and Osborn are still married, and there seems little likelihood of their becoming severed. It is thought that the opposition of the family to a marriage to Miss Maloney and Clarkson may have caused this latest development in this remarkable case.

'HAINS THREATENED TO KILL ME'—MRS. ANNIS

WIFE OF SLAIN PUBLISHER DECLARES SHE SEEKS VENGEANCE FOR HUSBAND.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Mrs. William E. Annis, widow of the victim, in her first public statement concerning the great Bayside Yacht Club tragedy, declared to-day that T. Jenkins Hains threatened to kill her while his brother, Captain Peter C. Hains, was pumping bullets into her husband.

She said she would take the stand and do what she could to bring about the punishment of "his cowardly murderers."

Here is Mrs. Annis's own story:

"I was sitting on the veranda at the Bayside Yacht Club on the afternoon of the races and saw Captain Hains and his brother, Jenkins Hains, walking about the grounds and the float. I was told that they were inquiring for my husband.

"I thought at first that they were looking for Will to serve some papers on him because I had heard that Captain Hains contemplated a divorce action. When Will, in his boat, returned from the race and approached the float I moved down the gang plank and stood on the corner with several ladies at a point almost over it.

Warned Husband With Shout.

"Thornton Hains and Captain Hains approached the corner of the float and stood over Will. Captain Hains knelt down to reach over the side into the boat. At this side, almost within two feet, stood Thornton Hains.

"At once I feared that they were going to hurt my husband, and I shouted to Will to look out. Before he could move the first shot was fired.

"I ran down the gang plank to the float and started toward Captain Hains, thinking to throw myself between him and my husband. As I neared him Thornton Hains turned upon me, and, pointing his gun at me, said: 'You go back or you'll get it too.'

"I realized at once danger, and said: 'My God, my children!'

"I didn't want to leave them motherless, and rushed down the gang plank. I was almost fainting and didn't know what I was doing. Mr. Burchfield aided me to the porch.

Annis Cried, "Give Me a Chance."

"Soon afterward Dr. Houghton's car arrived, and I was hurried to the hospital. Will at once recognized me, although he was almost delirious. He was crying out, 'Give me a chance; give me a chance,' as if he were talking to Captain Hains.

"When he saw me, he said: 'This is a terrible mistake; my children! my children!'

"I couldn't stay any longer, the doctors asking me to retire. I was taken back to Mr. Rothwell's home, but before leaving the hospital building I was informed that Will had died."

Mr. Birchfield, Annis's friend, who witnessed the shooting, said:

Pointed Gun at Mrs. Annis.

"T. Jenkins Hains took a position where he could command with his revolver all avenue of approach to the landing stage.

"As Captain Hains drew his revolver and pointed it at Mr. Annis Mrs. Annis started to rush to the assistance of her husband. T. Jenkins Hains pointing his pistol at her, said: 'Get out of here or you'll get the same thing.'

"Had it not been for T. Jenkins Hains standing in a commanding position, with a loaded revolver in his hand and menace in his eyes warning Mrs. Annis and other bystanders back Captain Hains would have fired only one shot.

"He would have been seized before he could have fired another. From this point of view T. Jenkins Hains was directly responsible for the killing of Mr. Annis."

MRS. HAINS WILL SWEAR AT TRIAL CONFESSION IS LIE

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—"I will not consent to blast my own name and put a stain upon that of my three children even to save my husband's life."

That is said to be the final decision of Mrs. Claudia Hains, wife of Captain Peter Hains, U. S. A., who is soon to be tried for his life on the charge of murdering William E. Annis.

Mrs. Hains, it is stated, will only declare, if she is put upon the witness stand, that the alleged confession, giving her husband reason under "the unwritten law" to slay Annis, is a false statement and was never made by her, or if she did put her name to the incriminating document, it was under coercion and without knowing what it said.

She will not emulate Mrs. Evelyn Thaw and use the witness stand as a confessional to give a jury reason to acquit the father of her children. She cherishes her good name and the honor of her children more than she does the life of the husband who has accused her of being unworthy to bear his name. The defence, it is said, must proceed to its task of saving Captain Hains from the electric chair without the aid of the woman who was accused both by him and Jenkins, his brother.

CORONER REPORTS ANNIS UNARMED WHEN SHOT DOWN

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Most important is the revelation to-day of Coroner Ambler that William E. Annis, whom Captain Hains shot to death at the Bayside Yacht Club, was unarmed.

The attorneys for the Hains brothers have given it out that they are looking for witnesses, men who heard Annis threaten the life of Captain Hains. It was said that Annis had been heard to say that he would shoot Hains on sight.

Coroner Ambler to-day states that no revolver was in Mr. Annis's pockets, and that a search of his locker at the yacht club disclosed no weapon.

"I have asked many of the club members," said the coroner, "about the alleged display by Annis of a magazine revolver. Every man I questioned insists that Annis never spoke of carrying a revolver. I am convinced that Annis at no time was armed."

District Attorney Darrin also insists that Mr. Annis was not in the habit of carrying a revolver. "I am prepared to refute any evidence along that line," said Mr. Darrin.

LEACH CROSS SAYS HE WILL DEFEAT MURPHY

BY TAD.

Although the bout between Leach Cross and Tommy Murphy doesn't come off until Wednesday, September 2, New Yorkers are simply talking themselves to death over it. In order to give our readers the inside dope on the affair, we have secured interviews with both boys concerning their mode of battle, dope on the other fellow and just how they figure to win.

Leach Cross, the pride of the Ghetto, whose rise has been so sensational, is the one picked for to-day, and his dope is good. The writer met Leach on Grand street by appointment, and after aiming for a cafe we sat down at the table for the line-up.

"I don't want you to brag about me," said Leach as a starter. "I know that I can beat Murphy, but don't want to appear as a big-headed rummy who might get copped. The most confident fellows in the world are beaten you know, but I don't think for a second that there is a chance of me losing.

"You know last year I used to go up and act as Murphy's sparring partner. Sure he beat me all over the Polo Club, and I remember one day in particular when he nearly knocked me out. That was the day I brought some friends to see me spar. Gee, I felt as cheap as a lead nickel when he put me down, but I'll get even with him. I told him so up at the Evening Journal office the day we went up to sign the articles.

"Yes, I was a punching bag for awhile. Oh, I guess we boxed fifteen or twenty times. No, they can't tell me anything about his uppercuts or his little tricks. I know Murphy like a book. I tell you I'd rather fight him than any one else they could name except Battling Hurley. Listen, if they put the names of all the middleweights in the country down on a piece of paper and asked me to take my pick I'd take Hurley first and then Murphy. I don't know why they think he's hard. I don't. Oh, Hurley, I can lick you any time, and I'll show them that Murphy is just as soft.

"I'm taller than he is, have a longer reach and a better punch. How is he going to get close to me when I'm whaling away with long arms? You saw me fight Hyland and Keyes. There was nothing close about them was there? I beat them every inch of the way and won easily. Hyland gave him two good fights. Keyes has beaten him and fought the hardest draws I ever saw. They were short boys, though, and had no reach.

"Who gave me my toughest go? Frankie Madden. Gee, I'd rather fight Murphy four times a week than to fight Madden once. I don't know why it is, but Madden was tough to me.

"Oh, Griffin? Well, I wasn't in the best of shape that night and the heat was fierce. Say, I lost eight pounds during the fight that night. Of course, that sounds like a jolly, but it's the truth.

"How am I going to get after Murphy? Well, there will be no stalling. I don't have to wait around and see how Murphy fights. I know how he fights; I have boxed so often with him that there is nothing new he can show me. He won't have me to hug and uppercut though, you can bet on that. You see I'm so tall that it will be no cinch for him to get that uppercut in, and that's his best punch. Take that uppercut away from Murphy and he's like a fish out of water. He's an infighter. He never hurt any one at long range. His great stunt is to rush a fellow to the ropes, jolt him on the body and then in the clinches work his uppercut.

"I think I'll be able to jab his head off from the start, and when I see the chance to cross my right I'll be there. You see I fight with my left shoulder high, which puts his right on the bum, and as for his jabbing me, why I have it on him in the reach half a foot.

"I have Charley Mayhood training me for this bout, and Frankie Howe for a sparring partner. Mayhood, you know, took Terry McGovern from the lumber yard and trained him until he was champion of the world. He knows a thing or two or three about the preliminary stuff and you can say for me right now that I'll be as strong as a bull when I get in the ring. Why, I only weigh 134 pounds now and I haven't done a thing except take a few walks. Just let my friends know that, so there'll be no worry."

* * *

Three or four like this came in last night's mail:

Aug. 24, 1908.

Tad:

Your article in the AMERICAN of August 22, relative to make-believe champions of the prize ring was not strong enough, in my estimation. To be champion of the world a man must meet and defeat all colors at his weight, of a class.

What champions have we? One—"Bat" Nelson, and he, an honest fighter, has never received half the credit due him, especially through the press, and your article also stated he possibly was a fighter. Nix on that. He is.

Trusting the AMERICAN will still boom the great sport, especially the real ones, and be the cause of the game being open in full in the near future, I beg to remain yours.

AN ADMIRER OF THE GAME.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

"What do I think of Ketchel? Well, he is one of the greatest fighters ever developed in America."

That was Jack McGuigan's reply when asked for an opinion of the middleweight champion. McGuigan has a good line on the fighters and is one of the best judges in the East. He refereed the fight between Ketchel and Papke, and thinks the new champion is a real wonder.

"Do you pick him to win over Papke, and what chance has he against Langford?" McGuigan was further asked.

"He will beat Papke to a certainty, and as for Langford, well, he is a good man, but not good enough for the champion. Ketchel will beat him if they ever fight, and the only man that is able to give the Montana cowpuncher a fight is Tommy Burns."

Sam Langford had better start after the heavyweights if he expects to get many fights, for both Billy Papke and Stanley Ketchel declare that they will never fight him or any other colored man. Joe O'Connor, manager of Ketchel, announced in San Francisco a few days ago that Ketchel would never fight a colored man while he was the manager. T. E. Jones, manager of Papke, has made the same statement.

Tommy Murphy has left for Peekskill, N. Y., with his trainers, where he will finish his work for the six-round bout with Leach Cross, which will be decided at te Navarre A. C., at Ulmer Park, on September 2. Tommy put in a week at Stratford, Ct., but he did not like the place, and came back to town yesterday.

Joe Thomas, the California fighter, was so fast in his recent twenty-round battle with Stanley Ketchel in San Francisco, that he was in his own way. Thomas weighed 180 pounds, and after getting a few punches in the body he became winded. In the second round Ketchel rushed and Thomas started to sidestep, but before he could get away Ketchel copped him on the jaw and Thomas went to the floor in a heap.

Jack McGuigan, the fight promoter of Philadelphia, made another trip to New York for the purpose of getting the consent of Jimmy Kelly for Bert Keyes to meet Grover Hayes, the Quaker City lightweight, for six rounds at the opening show of the National A. C. of Philadelphia on Saturday nigh. Kelly said he would let McGuigan know soon whether he would accept the match or not.

Johnny Oliver, who has been making the matches for the Bijou A. C. of Binghamton, N. Y., is trying to arrange a six-round bout between Battling Hurley and Billy Ryan of Syracuse, to be decided at the next stag of the club, which will take place on the night of September 4 or 5. Ryan has already accepted Oliver's terms, and it is expected that Hurley will do likewise. Hurley is in great shape just now, and should give Ryan a hard battle.

The prospects of a match between Frankie Neil and Jimmy Walsh being arranged look very good now. Last night Miah Murray wired Neil's manager, asking him if Neil would consent to fight Walsh at 118 pounds. Neil's manager wired back accepting the weight, and it is expected the articles of agreement will be signed to-day or to-morrow.

Matty Baldwin and Bert Keyes have been engaged to meet at the Fairmont Club, New York, in the star bout on September 4. They fought a twelve-round draw at Waterbury last Winter. They fought straight rules and the fight was not what it might have been. This time the boys will break clean, with a competent referee in the ring, there should be some good fighting.

JOHN I. TAYLOR FAVORS ONE UMPIRE ONLY

One umpire is sufficient, says President Taylor of the Red Sox, and he seconds the opinion of Manager Fielder Jones of Chicago White Sox in that respect.

"One man should be able to judge the plays and call the balls and strikes if he will stand behind the pitcher, where he is in position to get near every play, and also ge a better view of the plate, which is not the case when he is behind a large sized catcher who obscures the block.

"An extra umpire only gets in the way of plays, and unless he is in the right position is likely to miscue on calling the decision correctly.

"In my mind the umpire should be stationed behind the pitcher's box, never behind the catcher. Then his vision of the plate is unobstructed and when it comes to calling plays on the bases he can get over to the spot without the least trouble.

"The players do not like the idea of an extra umpire running around the field, as he obstructs their view of the game and interferes with the playing, oftentimes proving costly to a team's chances.

STAR AMATEUR BOUTS AT A.A.A.

The entry list will close Saturday for the big amateur boxing show to be held at the Armory Athletic Association next Tuesday night.

Three excellent special bouts have been arranged already, and they are sure to attract the favorable notice of the club members. In the first Max Landy of the West End will meet young McDonald of Cambridge at 105 pounds; Ed Shevlin of Jamaica Plain will meet Joe Murphy of Cambridge at 125 pounds; while in the event of the evening Champion Henry Hall will face Andrew Morris of East Boston, who won an open class at the Armory Club's last amateur show.

In addition to the above there are three open classes at 115, 125 and 135 pounds, and judging by the way that the entries are coming in there is sure to be a pleasant evening passed by the Armory Club members.

CLUBS LOOKING FOR MIKE TWIN

Mike Twin Sullivan has gone to the Provinces for a few bouts and also a vacation. He has a match at St. Stephens, N. B., with the winner of the Dan Littlejohn-Tom Foley bout, which is scheduled for September 9.

Mike Twin has been sought by all the big clubs in the country, but will not box till the Fall. The Fairmount A. A. and National A. C. of Philadelphia wanted him for Labor Day to meet Harry Lewis, but he passed them up. He is willing to meet Lewis for the welterweight title at the Armory A. A., and the match is a possibility late next month.

HIGHLAND LAKE FOR LEWIS.

Harry Lewis has decided to train at Mike Deveney's Highland Lake farm for his twelve-round bout against Unk Russell at the Armory Club Labor day. Russell will do his training at Blackstone, Mass.

READVILLE RACES ARE AGAIN POSTPONED

ED ED. COGSWELL.

Although the rain has stopped, yet the wind keeping in the east and the sun remaining hid till the noon hour to-day made the conditions such that the Readville track failed to dry out so that the Grand Circuit horses were unable to resume their turf battles listed for this afternoon.

With another day of enforced idleness, the horsemen devoted their spare time in chatting around the hotel corridors, taking in the theatres, playing billiards, etc. It is one of the most difficult things for the ever active horsemen to while away the hours when there has been a postponement of racing.

The lessons of the big Derby race were still a fruitful topic of conversation. On every side were heard the most favorable comments regarding the handicap method of racing, and for its initial attempt in this country it was even more successful than its most ardent admirer had even hoped it might be in his dreams of its possibilities.

In referring to the starting of the horses one of the judges who had several to attend to at his mark, said the following in an interview:

"It was too evident that Secretary C. M. Jewett had far too much work on his hand in the running of the meeting and was obliged to let pass till the final minute the securing of the officials at the numerous handicap marks. There were nine of the judges to be secured, and almost up to the time of the horses going to the most the entire number had not been picked.

Judges Should Be Drilled.

"While the men selected were perfectly reliable in a business way, yet there were some who knew very little about the nature of getting horses away from their handicap mark. To have the matter correct they should have been schooled, at least, in the duties of their office, but instead they were perfectly green at the work.

"We were told to report at Secretary Jewett's at 2 o'clock for instructions, then we adjourned to the judges' stand for further orders. These preliminary lessons did some good, but could not greatly enlighten those who were not practical in the handling of horses at a starting post.

"We had been at the starting post for some minutes before somebody discovered that no preparations had been made toward timing the race. This made a longer delay in getting a man at the three-quarter pole to handle the timing flag, which was dropped when the bell rang in the inner field. Had the bell been loud enough to have been heard at the timers' stand there would have been no need of a flag, but the timers, located at the finish, or wire, could not hear the bell ring at all; hence the need of the flag.

Wanted Standing Start.

"Then when he got this arranged came the bother in some of the starting judges wanting the horses on their marks to get the word at an absolute standing start. In some instances a groom was brought into use to hold the horses by the head. All of this was foolishness and due to ignorance of what to do. Wilkenson would not have reared and thrown Bowerman and then have run away except through attempting to start him from a standing start.

"Finally, after a lot of time had been wasted in getting off the horses in the first division, Secretary Jewett came rushing over and told the judges to get the horses away. That they must allow the drivers to take their horses to the mark below, where they were to get the word and then slowly jog up their own mark, each of the drivers on each mark to keep side by side.

"When this had been done all bother in sending away the field was over. In one or two attempts the judges had their horses right and way they went to the ring of the bell.

"This was true in getting away the second division and the final, though, through the carelessness of the judge looking after Wilkes Heart, he forgot and kept his finger on the electric button when the gelding was turned the opposite way of the track, so that he was given the word that way. This should never have happened had the judge been right onto his business.

"In having future handicap races the judges must be picked in time to become proficient in their duties, which will make the handicap method of racing a booming success."

LANGFORD IS AFTER BIG ONES NOW

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Now that both Stanley Ketchel and Billy Papke have definitely drawn the color line against him, Sam Langford declares he will be at the pier when either Jack Johnson or Tommy Burns returns to America with a challenge to meet either man, under any conditions, for the best purse offered.

"I was willing to make weight for Ketchel," said Langford yesterday, "and I certainly would like to meet him. This here man Jack Johnson keeps going after Burns. Why doesn't he fight me? If he ever does I will be the man to fight Burns, because I certainly will make that man Johnson stop."

Langford is training for his six-round battle next Tuesday night at the National A. C. He says he will stop Jeannette this time. They have met four times and the honors are even. Langford won once, Jeannette won once, and they fought two draws. Their last twelve-round battle at the Armory Club, Boston, was one of the best fights ever seen in New England. Jeannette says he broke his hand in the second round of that fight and was unable to do himself justice.

Jeannette's speed and cleverness give him an advantage in a short battle, but Langford's admirers assert he is too hardy for the Hoboken man. They also build hope of victory in the fact that Langford recently disposed of Jim Barry in two rounds, although Barry a few weeks before that fought Jeannette to a standstill in six rounds. Jeannette, however, in that battle crippled the same hand he had injured against Langford.

TO STOP GAME AT DETROIT.

DETROIT, Aug. 27.—Prosecuting Attorney is preparing to take action looking toney Yerkes is preparing to take action looking toward the suppression of Sunday baseball in Detroit, and he hopes to be able to prevent the game scheduled Sunday between Detroit and Cleveland.

AMATEUR BOUTS AT A. A. A.

There will be a big amateur boxing show at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night when some champions in their classes will appear. Like the Boston Athletic Association the Armory club will promote amateur boxing in the future and the sport should flourish in the Hub.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 27.—The Doves and the Reds will clash in the first game of their series to-day.

Tom Tuckey, the Connecticut League twirler who defeated the Cubs last Saturday, with the great Mordecai Brown pitching, will most likely do the carving for the Bostons, while Andy Coakley may deliver the pellets for the locals.

Many of the Bostons journeyed to Central City, Ky., yesterday, where there was a celebration in honor of President Dovey of the Bostons. An exhibition game was played with a substitute Boston team against Central City, and Boston won easily.

Mike Mitchell, right fielder of the Reds, was so badly injured in an exhibition game yesterday that he may be out of the game all season.

RYAN TO MEET MARTO.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Billy Ryan of Syracuse and Johnny Marto, the hard-hitting little East Sider, will meet to-night in the star bout at the Princess A. C. The boys will fight six rounds. Marto is one of the fastest lightweights in this section and is considered a hard man to defeat. Ryan believes he will turn the trick and is confident he will win by a knockout.

The Gamblers in Life's Necessities

They Should Lose Their Liberty As Well as Their Money

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

It was announced the other day that a young gentleman who had been engaged in "cornering cotton" failed in his corner and lost a million dollars. The young man should have lost more than that. He should have lost his liberty as well. His effort was to make cotton dear for the manufacturers, to make prices uncertain for growers, forcing some to hold too long and others to sell prematurely.

If he had succeeded in his proposed corner, he might have repeated what other gamblers did recently, giving the manufacturers so much uncertainty as to prevent their going ahead with their orders, throwing men out of work in the mills or bringing about reductions in their pay.

Quite often other men of the Joseph Leiter type have lost a million or several millions in their effort to corner wheat or corn or some other necessity. These men, too, should be put in jail, and they should lose their liberty as well as their money. No man should gamble in human life or its necessities.

In France the punishment for any attempt to increase the price of life's necessities is imprisonment at hard labor. And we ought to have the same law in this country.

The man who is speculating in the NECESSITIES of life is speculating in life itself, and his punishment should be more than a money loss.

If the time ever comes when the laws are made by the people, and when the Wall street gamblers have less influence than they have at present, it would be a good idea to arrange convenient quarters in the jails for these gentlemen that manipulate the necessities of life and put the prices up.

Long ago the French learned that it was against the people's interests to speculate in life's necessities. They arranged a punishment of imprisonment at hard labor, and that stopped the gambling. AND, AS YOU KNOW, FRANCE IS THE MOST PROSPEROUS COUNTRY IN THE WORLD TO-DAY AND, AT THE SAME TIME, THE MOST DEMOCRATIC IN ITS GOVERNMENT.

In proportion to the country's wealth the people in France are a hundred times more prosperous than those in America. And, leaving out all questions of comparative wealth, their actual comfort and prosperity are greater than in any other country. THEY DON'T ALLOW A FEW TO ROB THE MANY OVER THERE, AND THEY CHEERFULLY ARRANGE TO PUT IN JAIL AT HARD LABOR THOSE THAT THEY CONVICT OF GAMBLING IN HUMAN LIFE'S NECESSITIES.

What Becomes of Peter's Pence?

The Question Is Answered by a Competent Authority

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

A reader's letter asked this question:

> Will you kindly mention some time soon editorially what becomes of the Peter's Pence sent to Rome every year from the United States? Is it a personal gift to the Pope, or is it used for the government of the Church, or is a large portion of it put away for future needs?

The question is probably not disingenuous. However, it shall be answered.

The question was referred to Monsignor M. J. Lavelle, Vicar-General of the New York Archdiocese and rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral. He sends us the following answer to the question, which we print for our reader's information:

By M. J. Lavelle, Vicar-General of the Archdiocese and rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

The Peter's Pence is a fund sent to the Pope annually from every diocese in the world to defray the expense of the government of the Church. This fund enables the Pope to support not only the army of officials representing the government of the Church in all parts of the world, and to maintain the numerous congregations which, like the committees of Congress or the departments of the Cabinet, form an integral part of government, but also to help the poor missions in the various parts of the world and, sometimes, to aid in the restoration of old churches.

The Peter's Pence is an institution of great antiquity, but did not become a regular and really large source of income until the latter part of the nineteenth century after the confiscation of the Holy Father's domains by the Italian government.

Since then the Peter's Pence has become a necessity. It replaces, by the free-will offering of the faithful throughout the world, the revenues of which the Pope was deprived when his property known as Peter's Patrimony was taken from him.

Hats and Fashions

By James J. Montague

WHEN Dolly tripped home in her Glad Widow hat—
A Paris (or Bowery) creation—
Though it had to be reefed to get into our flat,
I still found some small consolation.
"I will get wholesale rates," I observed, as I stroked
The foliage, and thrilled at the touch of it;
"For surely a purchaser shouldn't be soaked
For a Wid-lid, when buying so much of it!"
But alas for my hopes! When the bill was displayed
It said, "One-half acre of hat, ninety D.," which I paid.

BUT fashion, which never a second stands pat
On ruffle, or flounce, sleeve or collar,
Decreed very shortly that no modish hat
Should exceed in its girth a half dollar.
And so I was joyful when Dolly stocked up
With a roof which resembled a wafer
(Though somewhat the shape of a demi-tasse cup).
"Here's something," quoth I, "I can pay for!"
The hat cost a hundred, I sorrow to state;
They sell all the small ones by jeweler's weight!

I KNOW a young man who is waiting to wed
Till dress reform works its mutations,
And women wear jeans and brown khaki instead
Of smartly confected creations.
And I feel full assured that when that time comes 'round
My friend will be, years without number,
Bestowed quite securely six feet under ground,
Engaged in an unbroken slumber.
For clothes may grow cheap in a long weary wh[illegible]
But if ever they do, they will go out of style.

Shall the Workers Rule---or the Talkers?

By CHARLES FERGUSON

THE Stentor-voiced Mr. Bryan shouts from the steps of the State Capitol at Lincoln: "Shall the people rule?" And the bombilation of his hurtling platitude rattles the windows, dries the prairies and causes the trembling Platte River to dive even deeper than usual under its bed.

The most discouraging thing about Mr. Bryan is that when he does this sort of thing he really seems to think that he is reaping and raking and binding wheat. He has no clear notion that he is just talking.

But Destiny has a stubborn way of turning on its own proper hinge, without regard to the designs and specifications of rhetoricians. Mr. Bryan has at last located his third "paramount issue," and poised himself confidently upon its pivot. It is hard to think that our most wonderful word-worker has again mistaken a resounding period for the wheeling axle of the earth. But so it is.

Mr. Bryan supposes—for the purposes of this particular passage in his life's long oration—that the issue lies between "the happiness, wealth and refinement of a few" and "the prosperity and advancement of the average man."

It seems that Mr. Bryan's "average man" is, as things stand, neither happy, wealthy nor refined, and must not hope to be, but that he can become prosperous and advanced by voting the straight Democratic ticket.

Far From United States

NOW our orator is supposed by some to be close up against the great throbbing heart of the real folks. But the fact is that he is three or four thousand miles away from the United States in his everlasting exhortations to the "common people" to stand up for their yeoman rights against an elegant but arrogant upper class.

True it is that some of us have an unconscionable lot of yachts and limousines, and some of us are treading desperately on our uppers; but that we insist is an accident due to the bungle and foolishness of laws that we can change. No American with a normal spine ever thinks or speaks of himself as belonging to a lower class, unless he is a misguided politician out for votes.

When your own clever daughter, Mr. Bryan, begins to regard herself as one of the "plain people," and when you, in your unguarded dreams—confess to your soul that you are just a "common" sort of person, in that day somebody may be elected President by appeals to the masses against the "refined" and "happy" classes.

But the Republic will have come to an end. For a great republic cannot rest otherwise than upon some millions of arrogant individuals who acknowledge no social superiors, even in their secret thoughts.

What the Issue Really Is

NO, Mr. Bryan, the real issue is not at all what you suppose. The critical question is not: "Shall the People rule—or the Aristocrats?" The question is: "Shall the Workers rule—or the Talkers?"

Why is it, Mr. Bryan, that the control of the vast industrial organization, upon which all our lives depend, is falling into the hands of speculators who never did a useful thing and don't know how?

How does it happen that all the genuine technical experts in this country, all the good workmen that produce real values, all the masters or materials and tamers of elemental forces, are at the mercy of shallow-witted market-riggers and "Napoleons of finance"?

Why is it that none of the big incomes go to the men who do the most creative work?

Why is it, for example, that the people who actually build and run the railroads —from the construction engineers [illegible] general superintendents to the diggers and track walkers—are wholly outclassed in financial, social and political influence by a little wriggling bunch of stock gamblers who play with loaded dice?

Why is it that the strong men who conquer the forces of Nature with the tools of science are trodden under foot by moral and intellectual weaklings who do smart tricks?

It is a hard thing to say, for you have always been a well-meaning man, but tricksters like Mr. Ryan could never make a living if it were not for talkers like you, Mr. Bryan.

Allied by Law of Nature

IT is by no accident, but by a law of Nature, that you and he have been drawn together.

Think, Mr. Bryan. What have you been doing for the last dozen years? You have been bombarding all the emotional centres of this country with exciting but irrelevant eloquence. With your sonorous "paramount issues"—Free Silver, Anti-Imperialism and Shall-the-People-Rule?—you have distracted the intelligence of some millions of men to the point of moral hysteria.

You have held us up on the road and given us nervous prostration with your wide-mouthed, bellowing blunderbuss, while your friend, Dick Turpin Ryan, has deftly gone through our pockets. Your rapturous moral exaltations have furnished the opportunity for great social rascalities, because they have served to draw attention from the real issues of life.

You—and such as you—have made the Government weak, have made it the easy prey of plunderers, by dividing and scattering the constructive forces of society.

The grand task of statesmanship in our day is to draw together honest workers of every degree and to give them rule over tricksters and talkers.

It is to this task that the Independence party is now turning its 'prentice hand.
